REVOLUTIONARY FLOP

With one backward move, Dick Fosbury changed everything

Nobody got the Fosbury Flop at first. Not even Fosbury. But Dick Fosbury knew he had to do something to compete as a high jumper on his high school track and field team. His coach tried to teach him the straddle technique, telling the youngster the scissors technique from middle school wasn't going to cut it.

Trouble was, Fosbury actually got worse with the straddle. "I was awful," he said in a 2018 interview with Beckett. "Terrible."

So back to the scissors it was. And then in one meet, with the bar getting higher, Fosbury changed his body position to clear the bar – essentially doing a back flip over the bar. What in the world was that? He improved by half a foot in that meet. The team won, he scored a point "and that was my breakthrough revolutionary moment," he said.

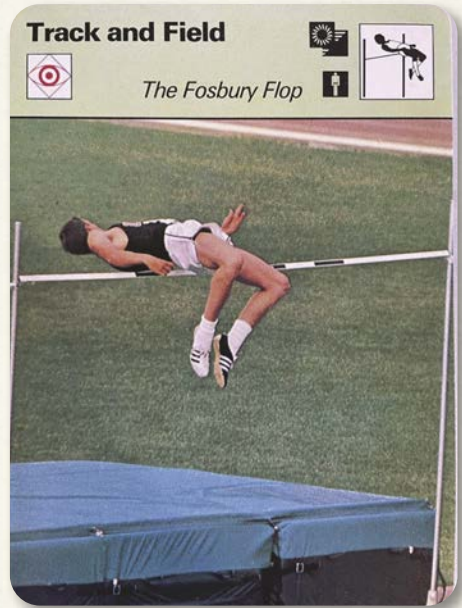

Fosbury ultimately termed the new move the Fosbury Flop when his original name – "a back layout" – didn't quite catch on. After winning in a meet leading to the Olympics, Fos told the assembling media, "Back home we call it the Fosbury Flop."

Now that caught on.

Fosbury and his Flop landed a gold medal at the 1968 Summer Olympic Games in Mexico City.

His recent passing (pages 88-89) was one of those reminders of how important one person can be in the development and advancement of their sport. It was good Dick Fosbury ditched the straddle.

The Flop – and the owner's contributions – live on.

EXHIBIT B

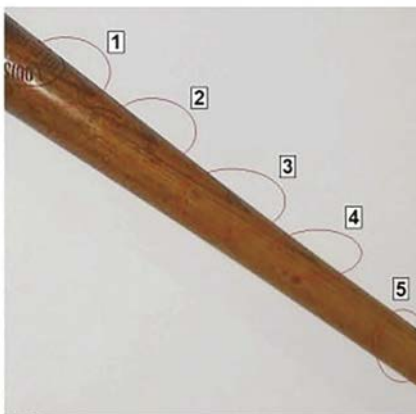

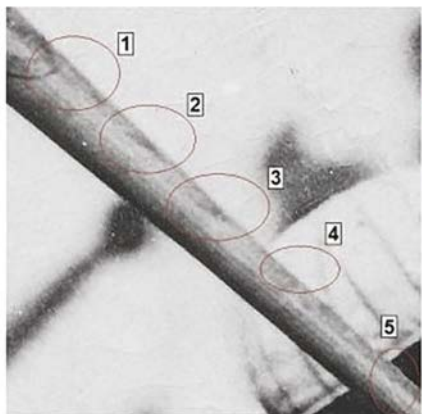

EXHIBIT C

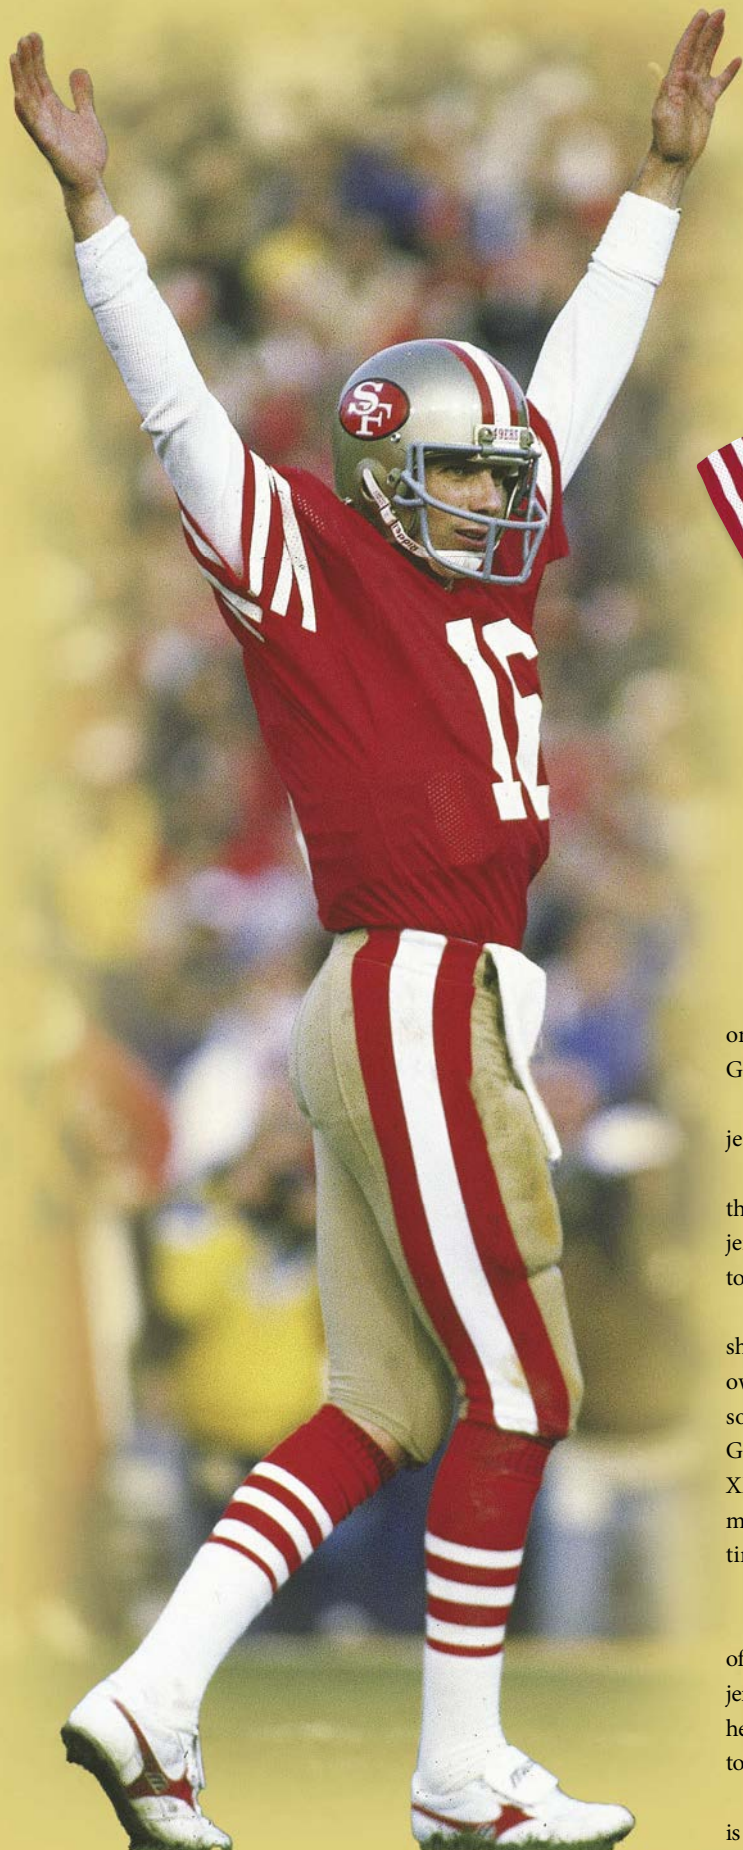

In April, Hunt Auctions announced on Twitter the private sale of a bat used by Babe Ruth during 1920-21 for $1.85 million – a record sum for any baseball bat.

The bat, sold to a collector who wished to remain anonymous at the time, had been photo matched by PSA/DNA to one being swung by The Bambino in a 1921 photograph. Hunt Auctions said the bat is the “only known example to offer photographic corroboration.”

The bat weighed a hefty 44.6 ounces. Most bats average 32 or 33 ounces.

“I am very familiar with the ‘Polo Grounds’ Babe Ruth bat, bringing it into the hobby 30 years ago,” John Taube of PSA Pro Bat Services said in a statement. “The rich brown patina and the Ruth characteristics that were present, then and now, establish the bat as one of the premier Babe Ruth game-used bats in any collection, public or private.”

Added Hunt President David Hunt: “It is without surprise that the Babe has once again pushed yet another sports memorabilia category to record pricing territory. This baseball bat is as close to a work of art as the medium can allow.”

MONTANA STILL BREAKING RECORDS

Two-time Super Bowl-worn jersey brings $1.212 million

The red San Francisco 49ers jersey Joe Montana wore in not one, but two Super Bowls sold for a record $1.212 million in Goldin's February Elite Auction that closed in March.

According to Goldin, it's the most ever paid for a football jersey in auction.

The jersey is the one Montana wore during Super Bowl XIX vs. the Miami Dolphins in 1985. Four years later, he wore the same jersey again in Super Bowl XXIII which included a last-second touchdown drive to beat the Cincinnati Bengals.

"Joe Montana was already in rarified air with four championship rings and three Super Bowl MVPs to his name and now he owns a new record -- the most expensive football jersey ever sold at auction," Goldin Executive Chairman and Founder Ken Goldin said. "With the record-breaking sale of his Super Bowl XXIII jersey, Montana has surpassed Tom Brady on top of that mountain. It's only right that the two greatest quarterbacks of all time are still trading off records, even in retirement."

Why did Montana wear the same jersey in two Super Bowls?

According to Goldin's pre-auction description, "The morning of Super Bowl XXIII, Montana's wife, Jennifer, took his game-used jersey from Super Bowl XIX out of a scrapbook, and put it in the bag he was bringing to the game, with a note that read 'Maybe you want to wear it again.' Montana, indeed, wore it in Super Bowl XXIII."

The jersey came from The Joe Montana Collection, which Goldin is handling for the Hall of Fame quarterback and attracted 22 bids.

UNOPENED BEAUTY

Robert Edward Auctions offered a hobby rarity in its Spring 2023 auction: This unopened 1952 Topps five-cent wax pack, graded PSA 5 EX. “This is only the seventh example (five-cent) that we have offered in the past 20 years!” wrote REA in its lot description.

The pack almost seems to have been pulled from a time capsule, with strong gloss and vibrant colors on the wrapper. “This is without a doubt one of the most impressive unopened packs we have ever had the privilege of offering,” REA further wrote.

With more than two weeks remaining in the auction, the pack had reached $24,000.

TED WILLIAMS “SULTAN OF SWAT” AWARD

HERITAGE TO OFFER IN MAY AUCTION

It seemed only fitting that in 1957, Ted Williams would be given the Babe Ruth “Sultan of Swat Award” for “Outstanding Batting Achievements” that year, as awarded by the Maryland Professional Baseball Players Association.

Williams batted .388 that year.

While Williams’ personal example of this crown – often referred to as the Babe Ruth Award – sold for $230,000 in auction just a year ago, Heritage Auctions writes “we must clarify that this is a different model, created some years later for display at the headquarters of the issuing body. The few physical differences between the original and this later incarnation are minor however, and the lengthy text that runs the perimeter of the crown is identical.”

Heritage placed the estimate for the crown at $250,000-up. The company’s 2023 Sports Catalog Auction begins May 11 and runs through May 13.

SIGNED BY MIKE

1982 NCAA FINALS NORTH CAROLINA CHAMPIONSHIP
TICKET IN UPCOMING HERITAGE AUCTION

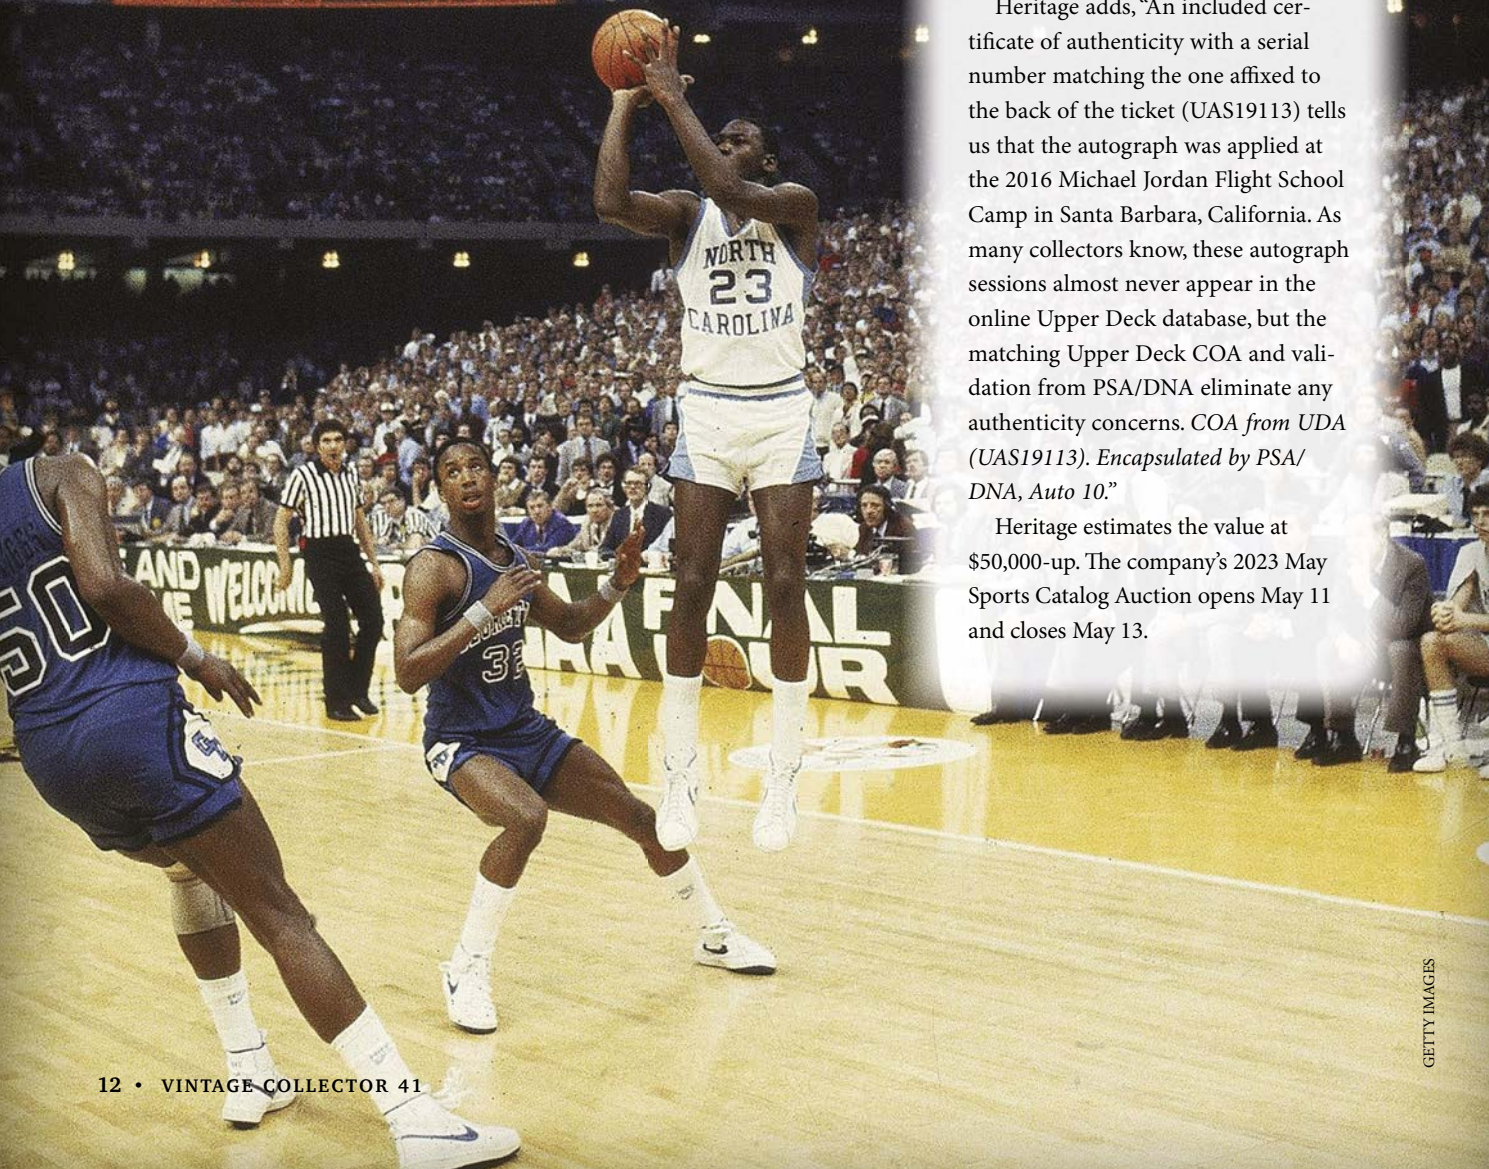

The shot is recognizable to even the most casual of basketball fans: North Carolina freshman guard Michael Jordan pulling up along the baseline for what would be a 15-foot, game-winning jumper over Georgetown in the 1982 NCAA Finals.

As Heritage notes, there are 82 stubs from this historic game that have been slabbed by PSA, with just featuring the autograph of the man who hit the game-winner. And of those four, this is the only blue ticket variation.

Heritage adds, "An included certificate of authenticity with a serial number matching the one affixed to the back of the ticket (UAS19113) tells us that the autograph was applied at the 2016 Michael Jordan Flight School Camp in Santa Barbara, California. As many collectors know, these autograph sessions almost never appear in the online Upper Deck database, but the matching Upper Deck COA and validation from PSA/DNA eliminate any authenticity concerns. COA from UDA (UAS19113). Encapsulated by PSA/DNA, Auto 10."

Heritage estimates the value at $50,000-up. The company's 2023 May Sports Catalog Auction opens May 11 and closes May 13.

EARLY GEHRIG EXHIBIT

Lelands recently offered a fresh-to-the-hobby 1925 Lou Gehrig Exhibit card, one of the earliest Gehrig issues known, in its 2023 Spring Classic Auction that was set to close on April 22 – shortly after our deadline for this issue of Vintage Collector.

But with two weeks remaining, the card – graded PSA 4.5 VG-EX+ – had blown completely past the $20,000 opening bid and had reached nearly $180,000.

This Gehrig had been part of a collection of Exhibits from the consignor's father-in-law, a collection discovered in the attic while family members sorted through the man's belongings. The man had apparently received the card in a penny arcade in the 1920s. The card was graded in January of this year.

As Lelands notes, just nine of the 43 1925 Gehrig Exhibits handled by PSA have received a higher grade than this example.

NEAR PERFECT

Mile High Card Company presented a near-perfect, completely PSA graded 1968 Topps set carrying a GPA of 9.94 with 572 Gem Mint 10s and 26 Mint 9s in the 598-card set in April. The set is a break-up of one of the finest known PSA Registry sets, carrying a 10.90 weighted GPA.

The lot appeared in Mile High's 2023 Spring Auction that was set to close April 20, more than a week after our deadline for this issue of Beckett Vintage Collector.

"As we have done in the past, the set will be offered as both a complete set as well as being offered as singles and it will sell to the highest aggregate bid or bidders," MHCC President Brian Drent said. "This offering is astounding as well as unprecedented in that to the very best of my knowledge no vintage set has ever been sold of such a high caliber."

REA offers highest-graded '49 Bowman Jackie Robinson

JACKIE ROBINSON STUNNER!

Collectors of vintage material know how difficult 1949 Bowman Baseball cards can be when searching for a higher quality copy. Printing issues, centering and fragile paper stock can play havoc on a card.

But not this copy, graded a Mint 9 by PSA – the highest mark a '49 Bowman Jackie has ever received.

As part of REA's 2023 Spring Auction, this Mint copy carried a $100,000 opening bid. With two weeks left in the auction at the time of our print deadline for this issue, it had already reached $180,000 in bids and was expected to be one of the more popular lots in REA's auction set to close April 23.

RARE MARCHETTI JERSEY SOLD BY HUNT AUCTIONS

This game jersey worn by Hall of Famer Gino Marchetti, sold for $80,000 in Hunt Auctions' Super Bowl LVII Live Auction in February.

The jersey is one of the few – if not the only one – to emerge in the hobby. According to Hunt, “searches from hobby auction records and other pricing databases we were not able to locate another Marchetti game jersey having been offered to the collecting public.”

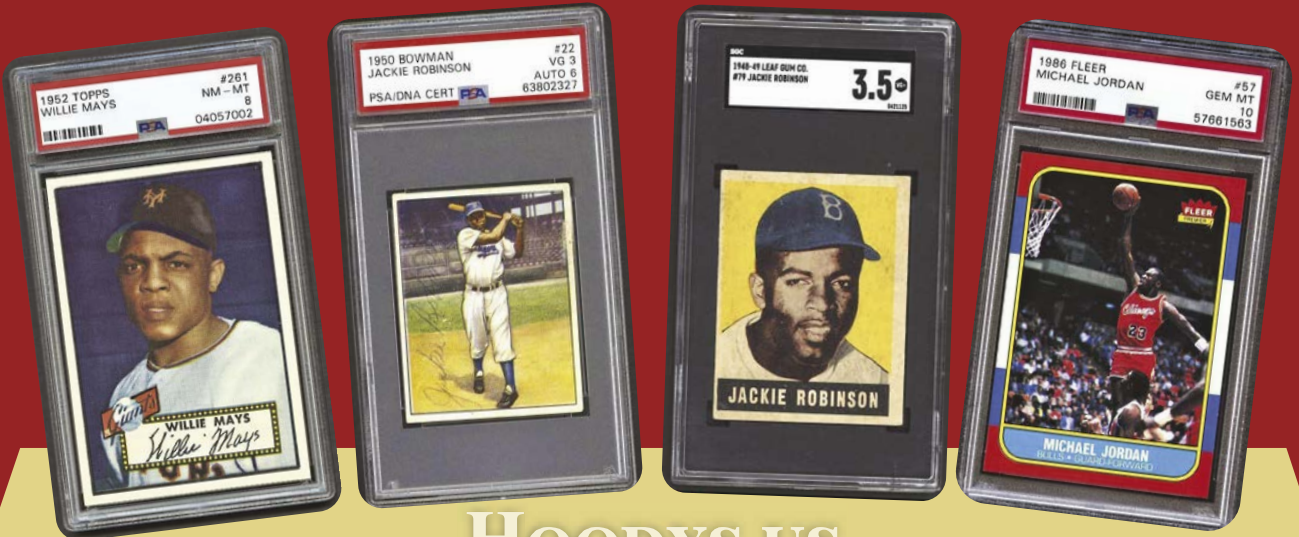

The jersey, and several other Marchetti items including a Super Bowl ring and his Pro Football Hall of Fame ring, came from Marchetti's estate.

McGraw's 1913-14 Giants World Tour Uniform Sold

SCP Auctions completed the sale of the game jersey and pants

In October 1913, the New York Giants and manager John McGraw toured the U.S. and played 30 games in 30 days, with games in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona, California and Oregon. From there, they traveled to British Columbia, then onto Tokyo via ship. That overseas part of the schedule began in December 1913 in Japan and concluded in February 1914 in Queenstown, Ireland.

They then returned to the U.S. aboard the Lusitania.

This uniform – jersey and pants – sold for $228,000 in SCP Auctions' 2023 February Finest Auction.

DRYDEN SCORES A 10

Of the nearly 1,250 copies of Hall of Famer Ken Dryden's 1971-72 O-Pee-Chee RC graded by PSA, less than 1 percent have reached Gem Mint 10 status.

This is one that did, and it sold for $15,745 in Goldin's 2023 April Elite Auction.

The six-time Stanley Cup champion also has a Topps RC, although the O-Pee-Chee version is considered the tougher to find in higher grade. And it doesn't get any better than this one.

THE 1983 TOPPS BASEBALL SET AT 40

10 things you may not know about one of the most popular sets of the '80s

BY KEVIN GLEW

It's the best Topps baseball set of the 1980s.

That seems to be the consensus about the 1983 Topps set. This 792-card issue offers three Hall of Famer rookies and dozens of other cards highlighting Cooperstown residents. And its trailblazing design has made it a favorite among collectors.

"It's got the two color photos on the front, which was ground-breaking," said Cory Slay, who collects 1983 Topps autographed cards. "It was unreal to have two color photos on the same card at the time."

Greg Gay, a long-time collector and blogger and occasional Beckett Vintage contributor, also savors the design of these cards.

"I think it has the best look of any of the 80s cards," said Gay. "It's colorful, it's clean. It basically improves on a set from 20 years earlier [1963 Topps] . . . It's one of the most famous sets Topps has ever made."

Rick Seuferer, who is nine cards short of completing his 1983 Topps set in PSA GEM-MT 10 grade, offers a similar assessment.

"It's a clean, crisp design," he said. "And I think they did a great job with the action photos."

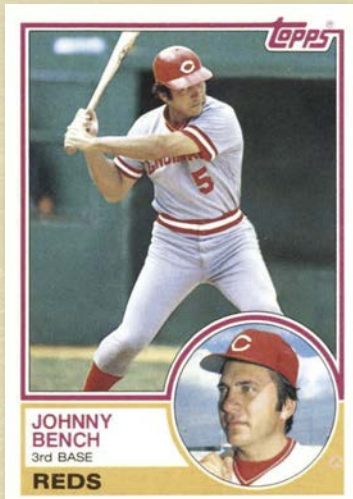

This year represents the 40th anniversary of the 1983 Topps set, but you've probably already heard enough about its Tony Gwynn, Ryne Sandberg and Wade Boggs RCs.

So, to celebrate its enduring appeal, let's take a deeper look at this popular set to try to uncover 10 things you might not know about it:

1. A second Sandberg rookie

Most collectors are familiar with the base Sandberg rookie (#83), but did you know that the Cubs legend is featured on a second card? Yes, that's Sandberg ducking back into first base on the Reggie Smith card (#282). Despite Sandberg's presence and Smith's borderline Hall of Fame career, this card costs little more than a common.

2. Johnny Bench, third baseman?

Bench is widely considered the greatest catcher in major league history, so it surprises most collectors when they see that his 1983 Topps card (#60) lists him as a third baseman. When Bench was 34, his body was wearing down from more than 14 seasons behind the plate for the Cincinnati Reds. So, to keep his bat in the lineup, he played 107 games at the hot corner in 1982 and just one at catcher. This is the only Topps card from Bench's career that lists him as a third baseman.

3. Goodbye to Bench and Yaz

Much is made about this being the first Topps set to feature cards of Gwynn, Sandberg and Boggs, but this issue also houses the final Topps cards (from their playing days) of first-ballot Hall of Famers Bench (#60) and Carl Yastrzemski (#550). Each of them is also highlighted on a Super Veteran card directly after their base cards.

4. Many, many mustaches

Gay counted that 421 of the 792 cards in this set showcase someone with a mustache. That works out to 53.2%.

"I was a little surprised that 1983 out of the sets that I looked at had the most mustaches," said Gay. "I thought it would be a little earlier, maybe late 70s or something like that."

Best mustache in the set? Let's go with Montreal Expos catcher Tim Blackwell (#57).

5. Some less than super "Super Veterans"

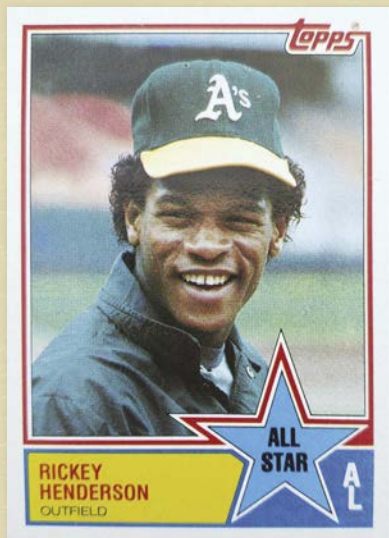

Topps did away with their "Future Stars" and "In Action" cards from the 1982 set and replaced them, in part, with 35 "Super Veteran" cards. These presented a photo of an active veteran from their rookie season along with a current photo.

"That was a little bit of a history lesson with those cards," said Gay. Many of the "Super Veterans" from that era you'd expect are included. Bench (#61), Steve Carlton (#71), Pete Rose (#101), Mike Schmidt (#301), Nolan Ryan (#361), Reggie Jackson (#501), and Tom Seaver (#581) are all highlighted. And then there are the not-so-super "Super Veterans" like Gene Garber (#256) and Dave LaRoche (#334). Sure, they enjoyed solid big-league careers, but "super" doesn't feel like the right adjective to describe them.

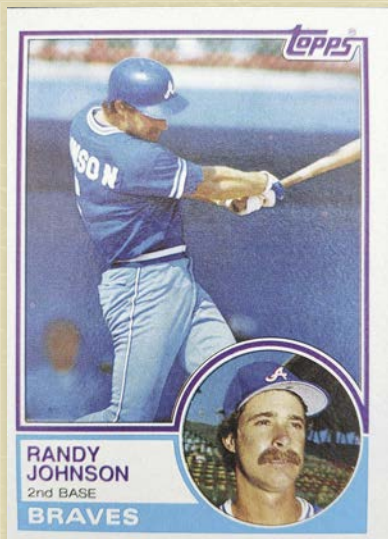

“I think it has the best look of any of the 80s cards,” said Gay. “It’s colorful, it’s clean. It basically improves on a set from 20 years earlier [1963 Topps] . . . It’s one of the most famous sets Topps has ever made.”

6. The frustratingly off-center Rickey Henderson All-Star card (#391)

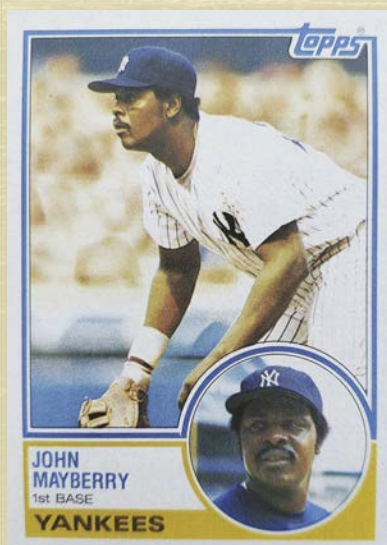

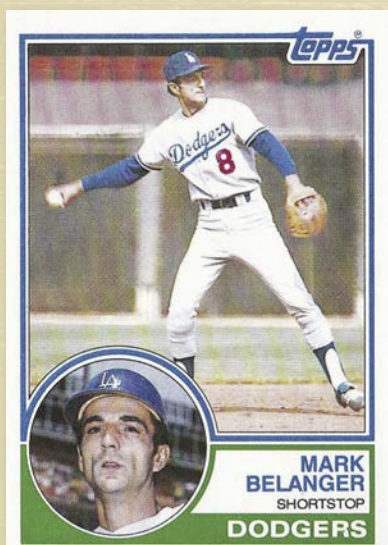

Henderson is highlighted on five cards in this set. Typically, a player's base card is their most valuable, but it's Henderson's condition sensitive All-Star card (#391) that commands the most in high grade from his cards in the set. Located on the far-right edge of the top row of a print sheet, this card was often miscut and is rarely found without centering issues. There have been just eight PSA 10 examples.

Seuferer says one of the last PSA 10s to surface for sale fetched more than $1,000.

7. Not that Randy Johnson, but these Randy Johnsons

Not one, but two players named Randy Johnson are highlighted in this set, and neither is nicknamed the Big Unit. No, the menacing left-hander's rookies wouldn't arrive until 1989, but this set boasts the rookie cards of Randy Johnson, who started 61 games at designated hitter for the Minnesota Twins in 1982, and of Randy Johnson, an Atlanta Braves infielder who would bat .267 in 204 games in parts of three big-league seasons.

8. He played for who?

In every set, there a couple of cards you do a double take at because you don't recall the player suiting up for the team they're pictured with. The 1983 Topps set is no exception. For example, do you remember long-time Orioles shortstop Mark Belanger (#273) with the Los Angeles Dodgers? Or how about John Mayberry (#45) with the New York Yankees? In each case, this is their only non-traded set Topps card with these respective teams.

9. Where have you gone, Paul Serna?

A determined group of collectors are attempting to track down an autographed card (checklists excluded) of every card in the 1983 Topps set. One such hobbyist is Cory Slay. Fortunately for him, his dad, Avery, started collecting autographed 1983 Topps cards through the mail in the 1980s. Slay picked up where his father left off about three years ago. He has networked in Facebook groups, scoured eBay and purchased cards through private signings to the point where the only single player card he needs to complete his autographed set features Paul Serna (#492), an infielder who played with the Seattle Mariners in 1981 and 1982.

“It’s funny because other people that I’ve run into have him,” said Slay. “And I’ve seen that card signed. I just haven’t seen it to purchase it. He was one of those cup of coffee guys.

“And unfortunately, he’s just very hard to track down. I’ve had a couple of leads. Someone sent me an address and I sent a card to him with no luck. Someone said he was a baseball coach somewhere in California for a Division III team and I actually sent a card to the university a couple of years ago and never had any luck”

10. You could buy a factory set from the JC Penney Christmas catalog.

Factory sets could be purchased from the JC Penney Christmas catalog for $15.99 each. The sets came in a plain brown box and are extremely difficult to find today. In mid-March of 2023, one was being offered on eBay for $1,000 or best offer.

“I’ve never personally seen a 1983 factory set,” said Seuferer, a long-time 1983 Topps collector.

11. No. 55 Tony Gwynn

In the opening, I said I wouldn’t mention the Gwynn rookie, but Seuferer points out that if you look closely at Mr. Padre’s card, you’ll notice he isn’t wearing his trademark No. 19. It appears he is wearing No. 53 or No. 55 in the photo. The likely explanation is that Gwynn was assigned that jersey number in spring training early in his career, before he made the major league club and ultimately got jersey #19.

TONY GWYNN

AN ARTISAN WITH THE BAT

BY DAVE IVEY

They said Tony Gwynn could fall out of bed and get three hits.

Of course, it wasn't really true. If it were, Gwynn would have kept precise records chronicling how often he tumbled out of slumber, which side of the bed he landed on most often, how many hours of REM sleep he got that night and probably even the thread count on the sheets.

The late, great San Diego Padres star did not become an eight-time National League batting champion and a member of the 3,000-hits club by accident.

Gwynn did it by following the familiar formula of perspiration plus preparation, while adding important innovations that served as inspiration for future generations.

Long before today's micro-detailed scouting reports and advanced analytics, Gwynn pioneered the use of video. He installed a satellite dish to tape his road games, lugged his clunky recording and editing equipment from city to city, and maintained meticulous notes on every pitcher he faced.

He spent $60,000 to $100,000 (depending on the source) of his own money to build a video room near the clubhouse at Jack Murphy Stadium and spent countless hours breaking down his at-bats -- frame by frame by frame.

"I study my swing," Gwynn told The New York Times in a 1991 article. "Something goes wrong, and I break it down. There are trouble spots I can look to: striding too far, my hips and hands aren't working together, or I'm out in front. Just one of those three things. Always. When I go back and look at video, I can see which of the three parts of my swing is correct."

Early on, teammates teased him for his obsessive approach, dubbing him "Captain Video." ("He's watched more film than Siskel and Ebert combined," quipped columnist Jim Caple.)

However, Gwynn quickly gained converts with his outstanding results, including a .394 batting average in the strike-shortened 1994 campaign that remains the highest in the NL since Bill Terry hit .401 in 1930.

"More guys are starting to realize it's easier to learn about yourself by watching yourself," Gwynn said.

Anthony Keith Gwynn was born in Los Angeles on May 9, 1960.

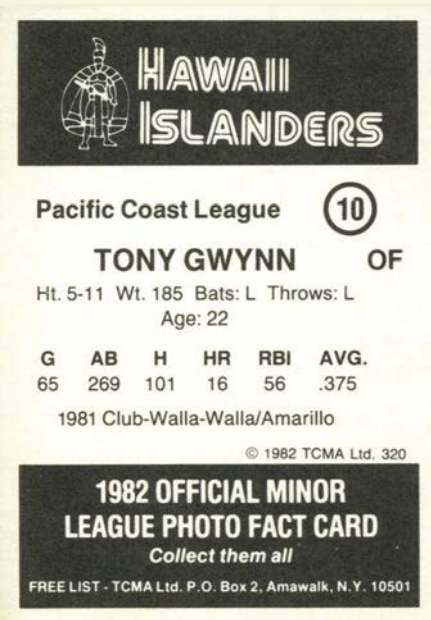

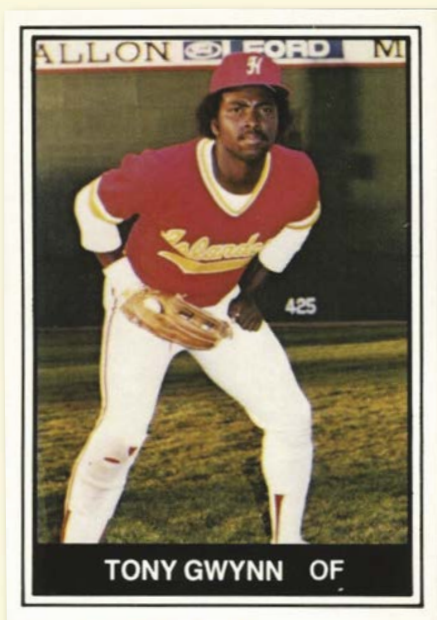

An All-American outfielder and an all-conference point guard at San Diego State, he was drafted by the Padres (third round) and the NBA's San Diego Clippers (10th round) on the same day on June 9, 1981.

Wearing what would become his iconic No. 19, Gwynn made his Padres debut on July 19, 1982 vs. Philadelphia and got two hits. "Don't try to catch me all in one night," Phillies first baseman Pete Rose told the 22-year-old rookie.

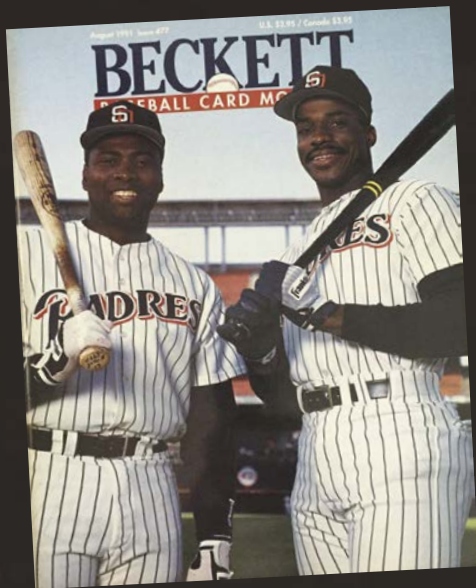

At age 41 with two creaky knees, Gwynn played his 2,440th and final game for San Diego on October 7, 2001. "Mr. Padre" finished with 3,141 hits, 543 doubles, 135 homers, 1,138 RBI, 319 stolen bases and just 434 strikeouts.

On July 29, 2007, alongside another one-team legend, Baltimore's Cal Ripken Jr., Gwynn entered the Baseball Hall of Fame as a 15-time All-Star and five-time Gold Glove winner with the highest career batting average (.338) since Ted Williams (.344) retired in 1960.

Gwynn passed away on June 16, 2014 following a battle with mouth cancer, which he blamed on a chewing tobacco habit. He was 54.

1984 Donruss #324

1984 Topps #251

Those are a few of the big, BOLD dates on a much-too-brief timeline, yet it was his daily work behind the scenes with film study and batting practice (another obsession) that ultimately earned him a plaque in Cooperstown (which begins, “An artisan with a bat whose daily pursuit of excellence ...”) and a statue outside Petco Park -- located at 19 Tony Gwynn Drive, by the way.

Gwynn never won an MVP award or a World Series ring (but played in two Fall Classics), and he never slugged more than 17 home runs in a season. Instead, he became the purest hitter of his generation by understanding his strengths and his weaknesses and by constantly working to eradicate the latter.

While contemporaries like Mark McGwire and Barry Bonds were launching longballs, the left-handed-hitting Gwynn was content to carve four-hoppers through what he called the “5.5 hole” between shortstop and third base.

“One of the reasons I get so many hits that way is because it’s hard to read the ball off my bat,” Gwynn told The Gwynn's first World Series appearance came in 1984 when the Padres lost the Series 4-1 to Detroit. San Diego teammates that season included (from left) Terry Kennedy, Graig Nettles, Steve Garvey, Gwynn and Alan Wiggins.

New York Times. "My hands come through the zone first, and the barrel trails and it kind of hides the ball from the fielder until I've already hit it. They don't see the ball hit the bat. They just see the ball off the bat. By the time they react, they can't get to it."

Speaking of bats, Gwynn referred to his preferred 32 1/2-inch, 31-ounce Louisville Slugger -- said to be the smallest in the majors at the time -- as "the pea shooter." A bad workman blames his tools, so the ever-exacting Gwynn went directly to the source to get everything just right.

"With my bats, I like a thick handle. I went down to Louisville to find out how to take the weight off because it's so short," he told The New York Times. "They told me they can put a hole in the handle and take off an ounce of weight and still keep the handle thick. All my bats have a hole in the handle now."

There were no holes in his swing, however, thanks to his constant observations, his religious attendance at batting practice (thousands of cuts per week during the season, he claimed in George Will's 1990 classic Men at Work) and his work off a tee.

"A lot of people talk about my loose grip when I swing the bat," he explained. "You can't go up to the plate unless you're relaxed. The tendency is to squeeze the bat. Squeeze the sawdust out of it. I wait and wait, and let the ball get right on top of me and just swing with a loose grip. ... I don't swing real hard. I just get the bat through the zone. I don't kill the ball. Tap it. Lay the bat on the ball. I hit it hard enough to get it through the infield, but soft enough to get it out, way out in the outfield."

There's no arguing with the results. After hitting .289 as a rookie, Gwynn batted better than .300 in each of the next 19 seasons -- the second-longest streak in baseball history after Ty Cobb (23).

Incredibly, Gwynn struck out more than 35 times in a season just once (40 in 1988). By comparison, 14 players on the Padres struck out at least 40 times in 2022 and 152 players in the majors fanned at least 100 times.

Gwynn only had one three-strikeout game in his entire career, against Los Angeles Dodgers right-hander Bob Welch on April 14, 1986. On Opening Day in 2023, 18 players struck out at least three times, including three with four Ks and one player (the Dodgers' Max Muncy) with five.

Fans who may only recall an older, heavier Gwynn with bad knees might be surprised to learn he tallied more stolen bases than strikeouts in four different seasons, including 1987 with a career-high 56 thefts and 35 whiffs. He also posted four seasons with double-digit triples and led the NL in putouts by a right fielder three times.

For more proof of his athleticism, consider that Gwynn still holds the San Diego State basketball records for most assists in a game, a season, and a career.

Gwynn was 37 when he tied Honus Wagner's NL record with his eighth batting title (.372) in 1997, also setting career highs in hits (220), doubles (49), homers (17) and RBIs (119) with only 28 strikeouts. Since 2016, the league's leading hitter has been named the Tony Gwynn National League batting champion.

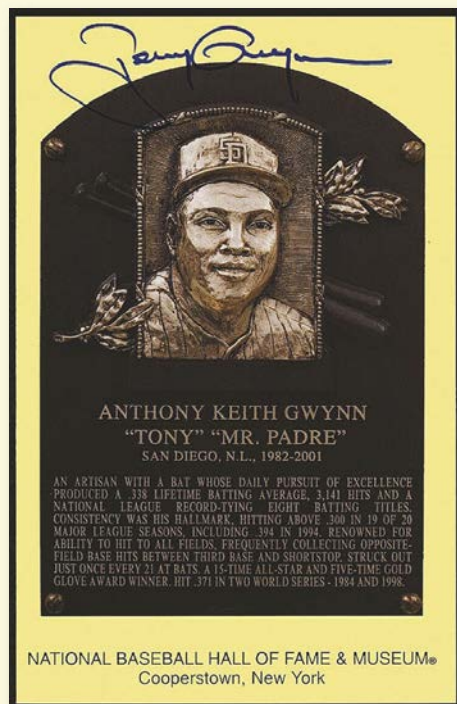

HIT #3,000

In April 2017, SCP Auctions presented 26 lots of Tony Gwynn memorabilia from the Hall of Famer's widow, Alicia. Included among those lots was the ball used for hit #3,000.

Pre-auction estimates placed the ball at around $55,000. It sold for $142,762.

SCP previously had sold several lots of Gwynn memorabilia – also from Alicia – in a 2015 event. Two years later, the ball struck by Gwynn on August 6, 1999 against Montreal pitcher Dan Smith brought far more than anyone had anticipated – nearly three times more.

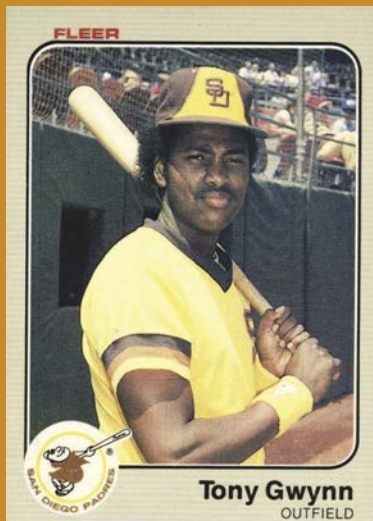

RC LINEUP

Tony Gwynn's RCs came in 1983, when the collecting landscape looked far different than it does now. There were just three companies – Topps, Fleer, Donruss – and each included the Padres' 23-year-old rookie outfielder in their main offerings.

1983 Topps #482

1983 Fleer #360

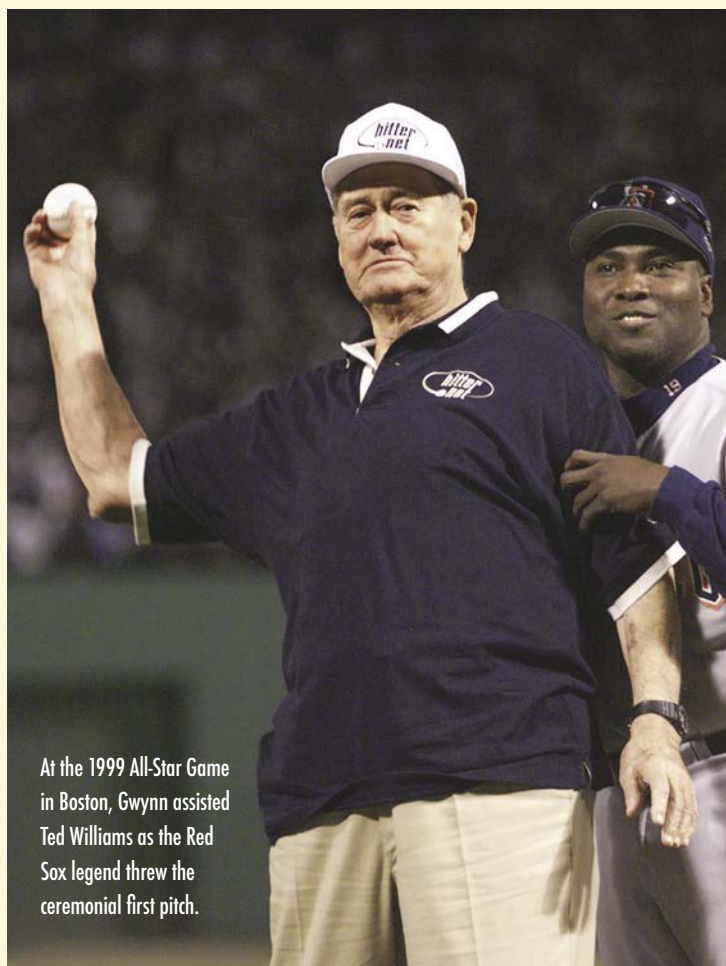

1983 Donruss #598

The Padres played their first season in 1969 but didn't reach the playoffs until Gwynn's first full season in 1984. San Diego won the pennant that year and another in 1998, losing in the World Series to the Detroit Tigers the first time and swept by the New York Yankees the second. Gwynn batted .371 in the Fall Classic, including a homer at Yankee Stadium.

Gwynn, who coached baseball at his alma mater San Diego State for 12 seasons after his retirement (the Aztecs play at Tony Gwynn Stadium), always insisted he wasn't concerned about his place in history.

"When I'm dead and gone, all that will be left is the numbers," Gwynn said in his 1998 book The Art of Hitting, written with Roger Vaughan (foreword by Ted Williams). "They won't remember how much heart a person had, or how consistent he was, they'll just look at the numbers."

"WHEN I'M DEAD AND GONE, ALL THAT WILL BE LEFT IS THE NUMBERS," GWYNN SAID IN HIS 1998 BOOK THE ART OF HITTING, WRITTEN WITH ROGER VAUGHAN

At the 1999 All-Star Game in Boston, Gwynn assisted Ted Williams as the Red Sox legend threw the ceremonial first pitch.

He was wrong, of course. A rare swing-and-a-miss.

At his public memorial service at Petco Park a week after his death, they remembered his dedication to the City of San Diego, his contributions on and off the field, his friendships and perhaps above all, his unmistakable laugh, more of a contagious cackle, really. Padres radio broadcaster Ted Leitner even played a recording of the high-pitched giggle for the crowd. "To me, Tony's laugh was the sound of the Padres," Leitner said. "It wasn't the crack of his bat; it was his laugh."

Today the Padres are still seeking their first World Series championship.

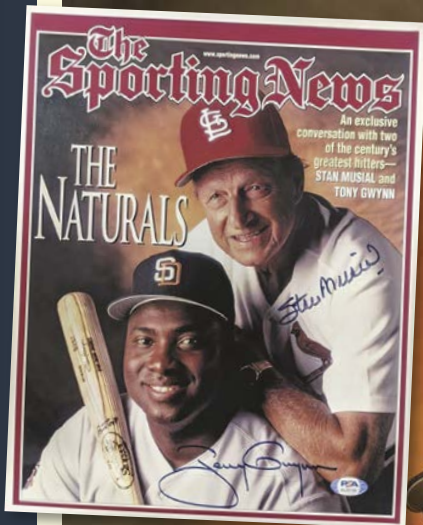

2001 Upper Deck Ultimate Collection Ultimate Signatures/150

Current stars Manny Machado, Xander Bogaerts, Fernando Tatis Jr. and Juan Soto have a lot more help than back when Gwynn was wearing out the rewind button.

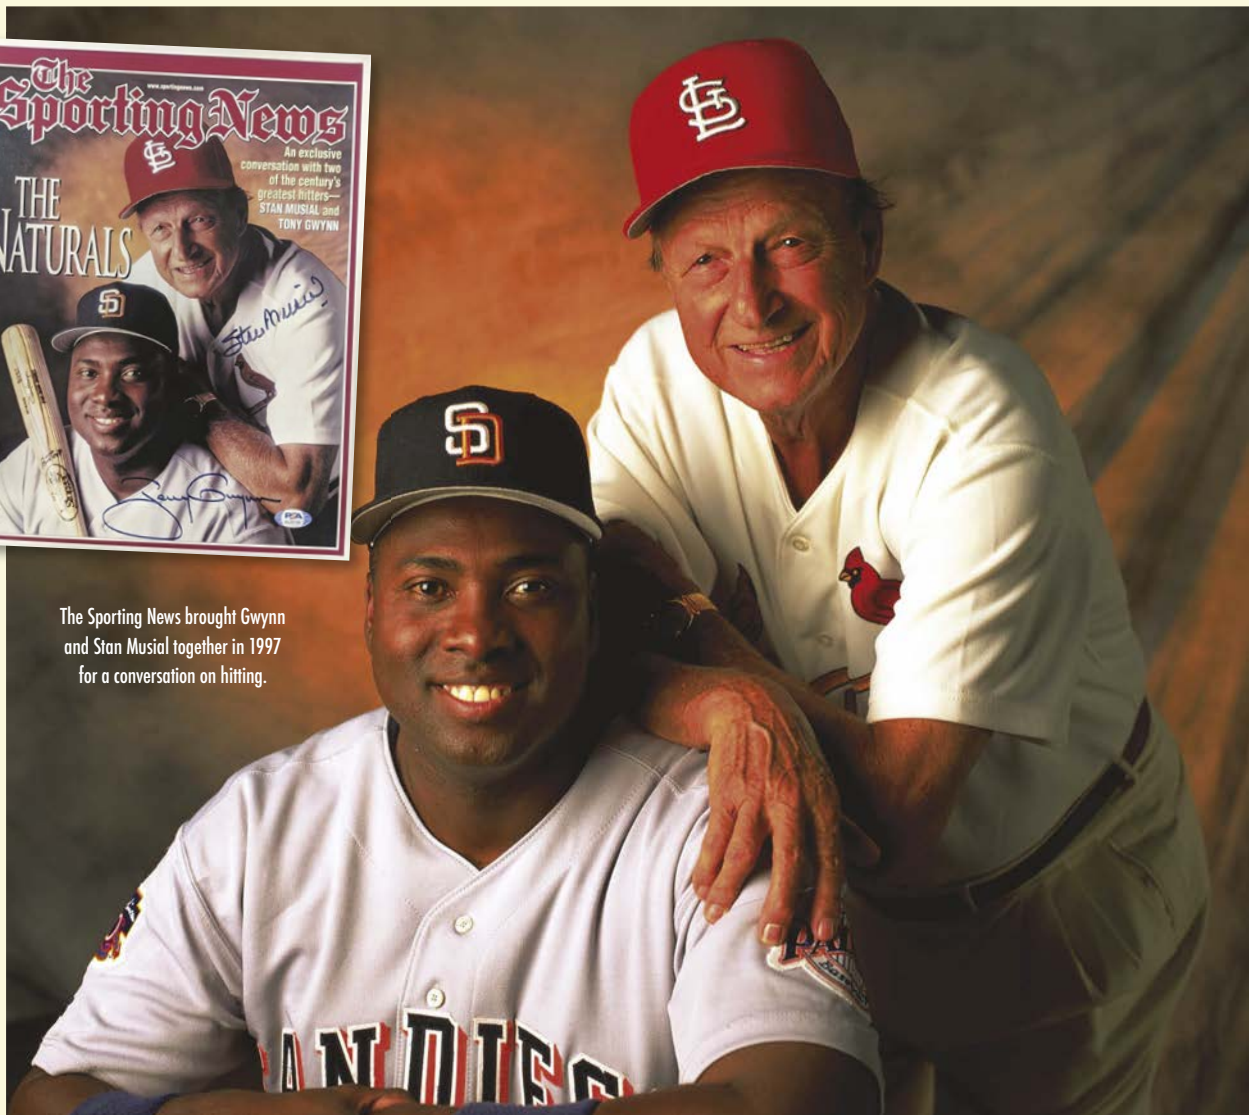

The team now has 15 people working in a department called Baseball Systems/Research & Development, including data engineers, performance coaches and sports scientists. The Player

Development department has a whopping 31 employees listed in the 2023 media guide, including two who work in "player development video operations."

That would probably make Tony Gwynn laugh.

The Sporting News brought Gwynn and Stan Musial together in 1997 for a conversation on hitting.

THE OLD COLLEGE TRY

From 1909-11, a Greek tobacco company brought college cards to the forefront of its marketing efforts

BY ANSON WHALEY

GETTY IMAGES

Cards and collectibles focused around colleges and universities have always been immensely popular. Collectors will find numerous sets of related trading cards and other paper ephemera that date back to the 19th century.

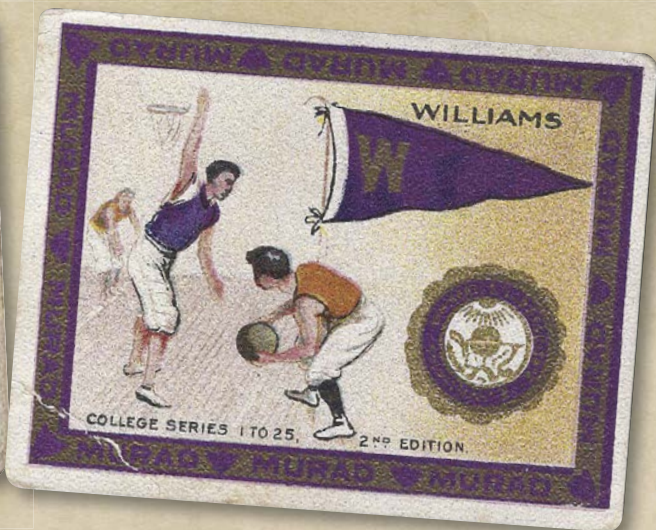

In particular, its tobacco companies that worked the hardest to integrate these types of collectibles into their packaging as they sought new ways to introduce young adults to their products. And the most popular of the early trading cards in this category is arguably the T51 Murad College Sports set.

True to its name, the Murad College Sports set matched colleges and universities from around the country with sports. These cards were printed for distribution inside packages of a Turkish tobacco product, Murad Cigarettes. The cigarettes were produced by Soterios (sometimes seen as Sotirios) Anargyros, a New York tobacco maker from Greece.

The 'Sports' part of the name is only loosely accurate. Collectors would be hard-pressed to consider some of the activities depicted on the cards as true sporting events. But while the series does include some things such as camping, fishing, hunting and even generic scenery, this is still primarily a sports set. In fact, this series is one of the few domestic pre-war tobacco sets to include all four major American sports in baseball, football, basketball and hockey. It also contains other popular sports such as golf, tennis, and track and field.

Track and field is the subject type most seen. Nearly 40 cards in the offering depict track and field athletes. But collectors of the 'Big Four' sports won't be disappointed, either. The set boasts a total of 19 cards from those sports, including eight baseball cards.

FIRST HOOPS PRESENCE

While baseball is typically the focal point in most multi-sport series, that's not necessarily the case here. Sure, those cards are highly collected. But the basketball cards are the ones that have been the set's biggest draw in recent years as they have become widely recognized as the first true cards depicting that sport.

Basketball was featured on some earlier collectibles prior to the T51 Murad set. Perhaps the most notable ones include a larger 'photo card' featuring women playing basketball for Princeton in the 1903 Tetlow series and a paper doll issued for Enameline stoves from the 1890s that features a young unnamed player for Illinois Wesleyan basketball. But the Murads are generally viewed as the first traditional basketball cards and the prices for them have risen dramatically in the last few years. A total of four basketball cards are included in the set representing Williams College, Xavier, Northwestern, and Luther. Of those four, the Williams card is the most sought after as it was the only one printed in the first series (thus, making it the first). Today, even low-grade copies of that card are sold in the $100-$200 range.

The football cards, too, are wildly popular. Before the emergence of the Williams basketball card, in fact, the card depicting Michigan football was considered king in terms of price. In poor condition, it starts around $30-$50.

The athletes pictured on the cards are not named but men make up most of the subjects in this set. However, it should be noted that a few women were pictured, too. Women can be seen on a handful of cards featuring golf, tennis, and more. In fact, the cards for Baker University and the University of South Carolina picture female golfers with male counterparts that appear to merely be the caddies.

TRUE BEAUTIES

The set, too, is not just popular with sports fans or even exclusively collectors. Another reason the cards are sought after is because of their crossover appeal. Even some non-collectors are drawn to them if they attended or have a particular affiliation with the college or university pictured.

The cards are, in a word, beautiful. While some artistic detail is surely missing in a few of the pictures, this lithographic set contains some great full color imagery with a partially gold paint Murad Cigarettes border surrounding the edges. Backs include a checklist of the particular series to which a particular card belongs. While the cards feature generic subjects, they do name, of course, very real colleges and universities – many of which still operate today.

The set was a fairly large one, given the time period. In all, 150 different cards make up the set. While the cards are considered as one complete set, a total of six different series' (each consisting of 25 cards) was printed. For the completist collectors, a master set consists of 225 cards. The first 50 cards are all found with variations including a small notation that reads "2nd Edition." Additionally, the first 25 cards have a 'Number on front' variation with those cards including a small card number. These numbered cards are very rare and can often go under the radar. However, experienced sellers understanding their rarity will generally ask for more for them.

THE SET WAS A FAIRLY LARGE ONE, GIVEN THE TIME PERIOD. IN ALL, 150 DIFFERENT CARDS MAKE UP THE SET. WHILE THE CARDS ARE CONSIDERED AS ONE COMPLETE SET, A TOTAL OF SIX DIFFERENT SERIES' (EACH CONSISTING OF 25 CARDS) WAS PRINTED.

IN EXCHANGE FOR 15 CIGARETTE COUPONS PLACED INSIDE OF THEIR PACKAGES, MURAD PROVIDED CUSTOMERS WITH THEIR CHOICE OF ONE OF 25 LARGER FAUX CABINET-STYLE CARDS THAT USED THE SAME IMAGES AS THEIR SMALLER COUNTERPARTS WITH A FEW MINOR EDITS.

Coincidentally, the printing of the set by series also helps to affirm its popularity. For one thing, a total of six series' were printed. An unpopular set would have likely been given the ax much earlier. Also, the print variations indicating the second edition for the first two series' tells us that the set was selling well enough that the company decided to print more of those cards to meet demand.

While the exact dates of production are not known, the set was believed to have begun in 1909 with distribution seemingly occurring through at least 1911. 1911 is most commonly selected for the conclusion of this series' since that is when a special redemption offer expired. In exchange for 15 cigarette coupons placed inside of their packages, Murad provided customers with their choice of one of 25 larger faux cabinet-style cards that used the same images as their smaller counterparts with a few minor edits. Today, these larger-sized cards are categorized as the T6 set. They were only available to customers through June 30, 1911.

As might be suspected, these oversized cards are much rarer than the smaller T51 cards because collectors were required to redeem the coupons in exchange for them. They are also considerably more valuable. While low-grade commons from the T51 set typically start around $5, the larger T6 cards begin around $20-$25. Two styles of these cards also exist with different font types being used on the backs.

Finally, condition of the cards requires some attention. The cards are printed on a mostly unfamiliar card stock that is lighter and includes a smoother, felt-like texture, similar almost, to that found on ink blotters. As a result, the cards are easily damaged and difficult to find in true high-grade condition. In addition to the typical wrinkles and worn corners, some cards will feature writing on the back (where collectors added markings to the checklist) while others have been trimmed down to remove the tobacco brand borders. Those commonly-seen issues should mean that high-grade T51 cards receive an extra premium in value.

Among the things that do not typically affect value are the factory stampings seen on the backs. Many Murad cards have a 'Packer number' stamped on the reverse (perhaps indicating the employee that packaged the card with the cigarettes). Because those stamps were intentionally added during production, they do not usually affect the cards' values. It should be noted, however, that not all T51 cards include a stamped packer number. Thus, some collectors may place a premium on cards devoid of that marking.

The set is a somewhat challenging build, in part due to its size and also because of rising prices for some of the major sports cards. But the cards are seen frequently enough that it is not considered a rare set, and without the use of real athletes, a standard 150-card set build can make for a nice project for the collector on a budget.

COMING-OF-AGE SPORTS CULTURE

The 1950s was somewhat of an adolescence for American culture, discovering its identity in a post-World War II era. By the middle of the decade, Marilyn Monroe had married Joe DiMaggio, Elvis Presley released his first single, the first issue of Sports Illustrated was published, Ray Kroc opened his first McDonald's, Rosa Parks was arrested for refusing to give up her seat on a bus, and Willie Mays made "The Catch" in the World Series.

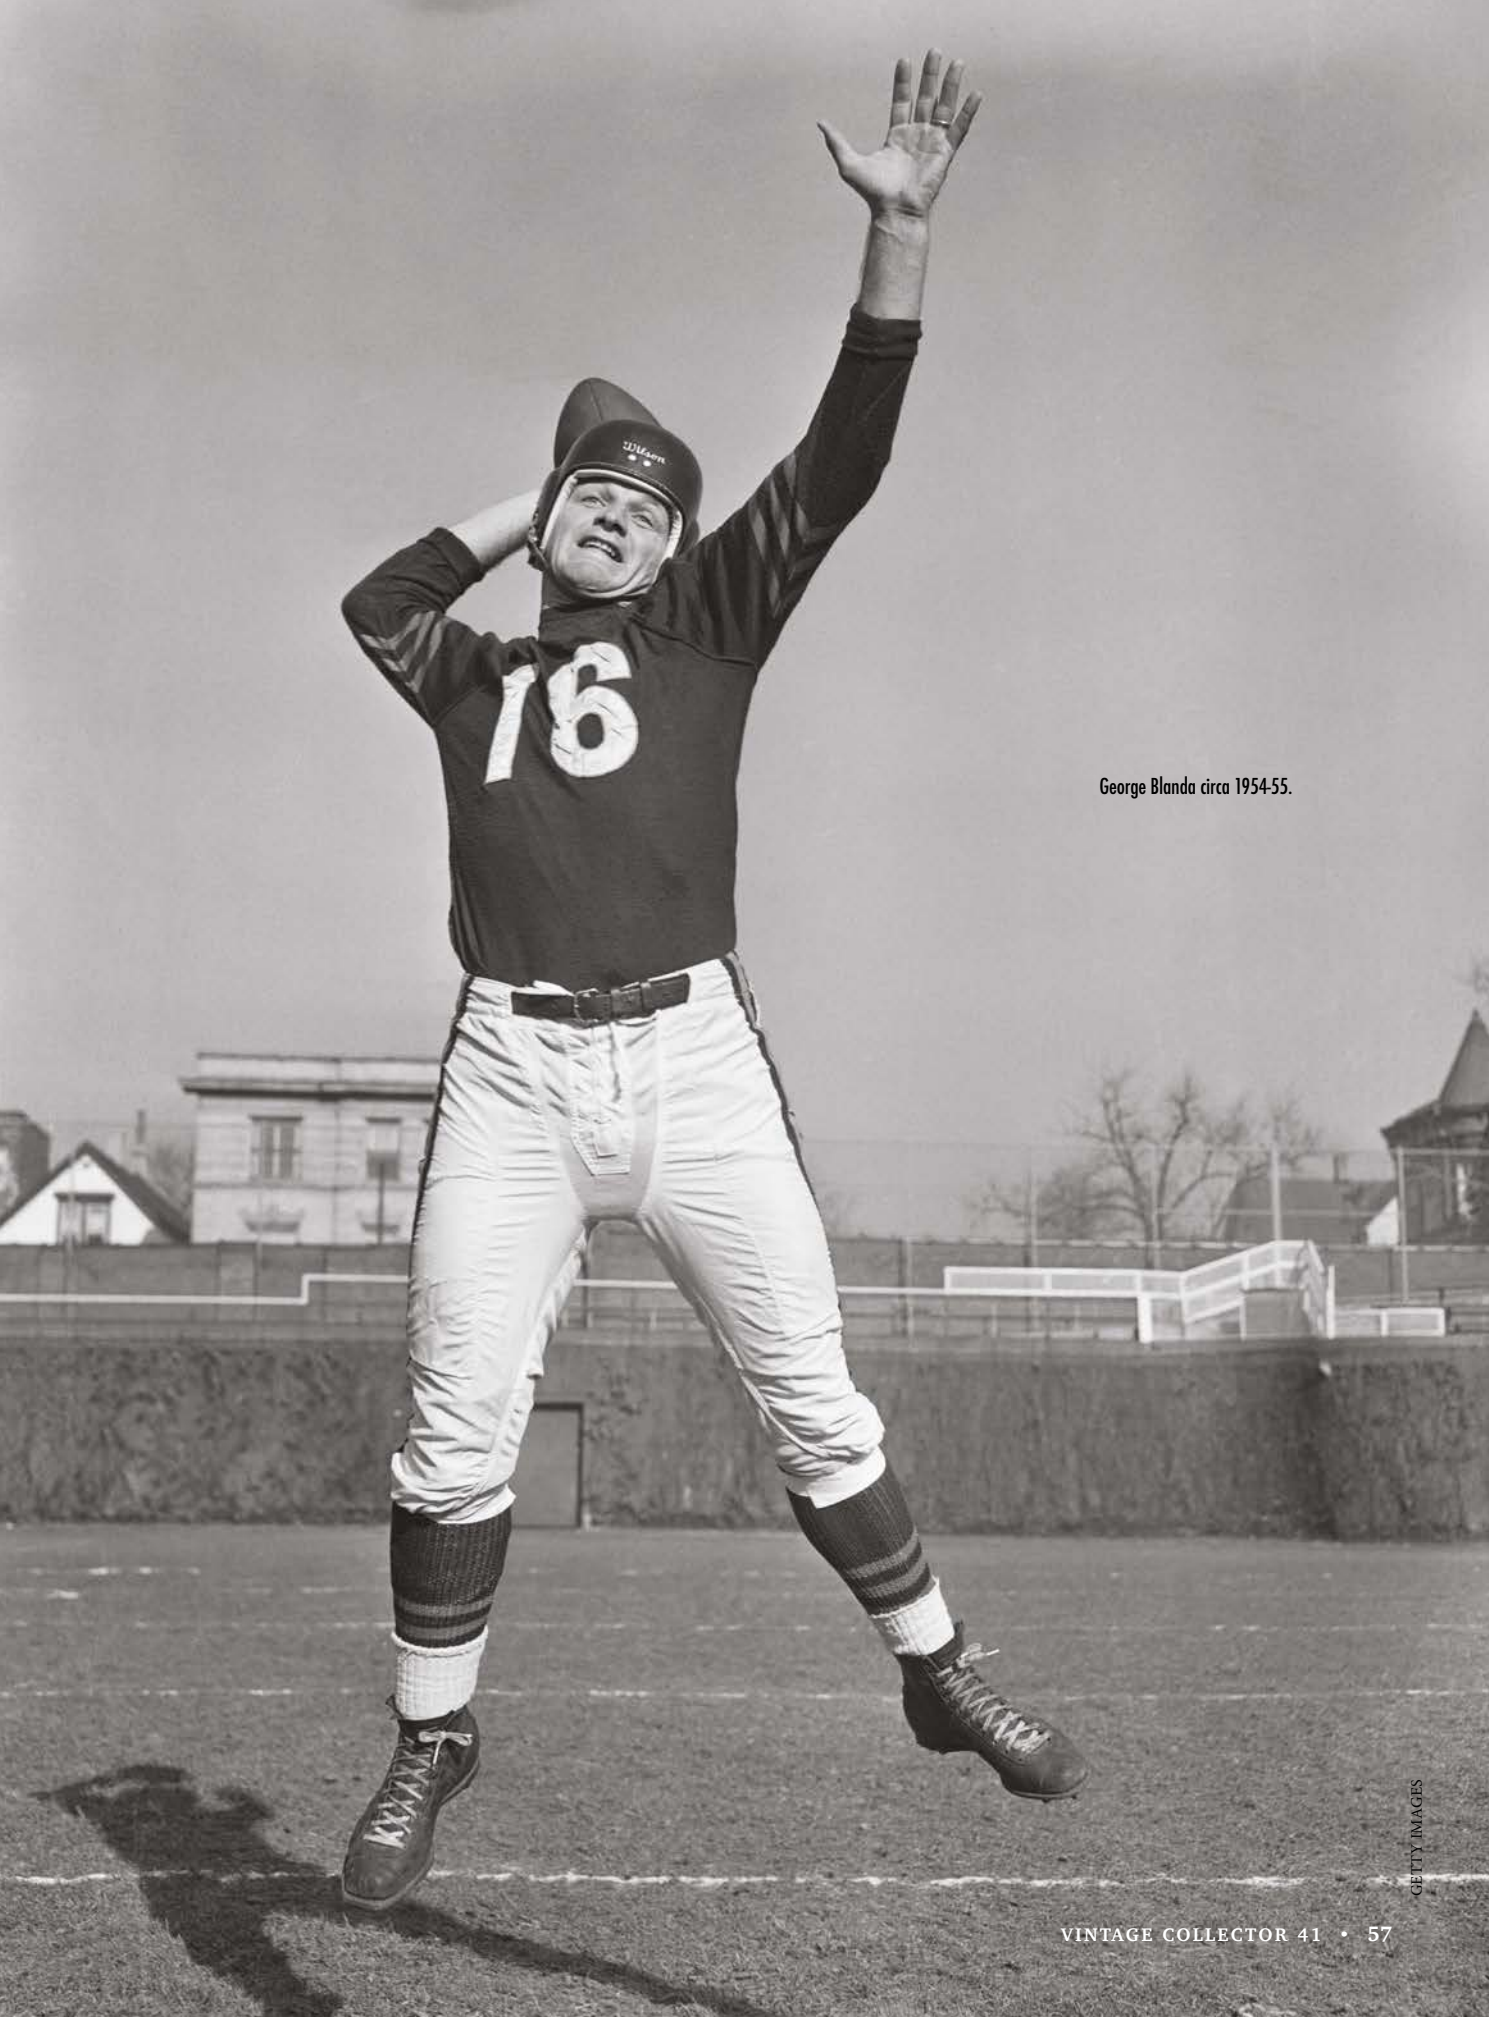

If American pop culture was in its teenage years, the NFL was a pre-teen—still growing into the mainstream pro sports consciousness. That would change by the end of the decade as pro football flooded into American homes. In 1951, the first sports TV broadcast in color was a baseball game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and Boston Braves. At that time, roughly 10 percent of American homes had a television set. That number grew to more than 85 percent by 1959.

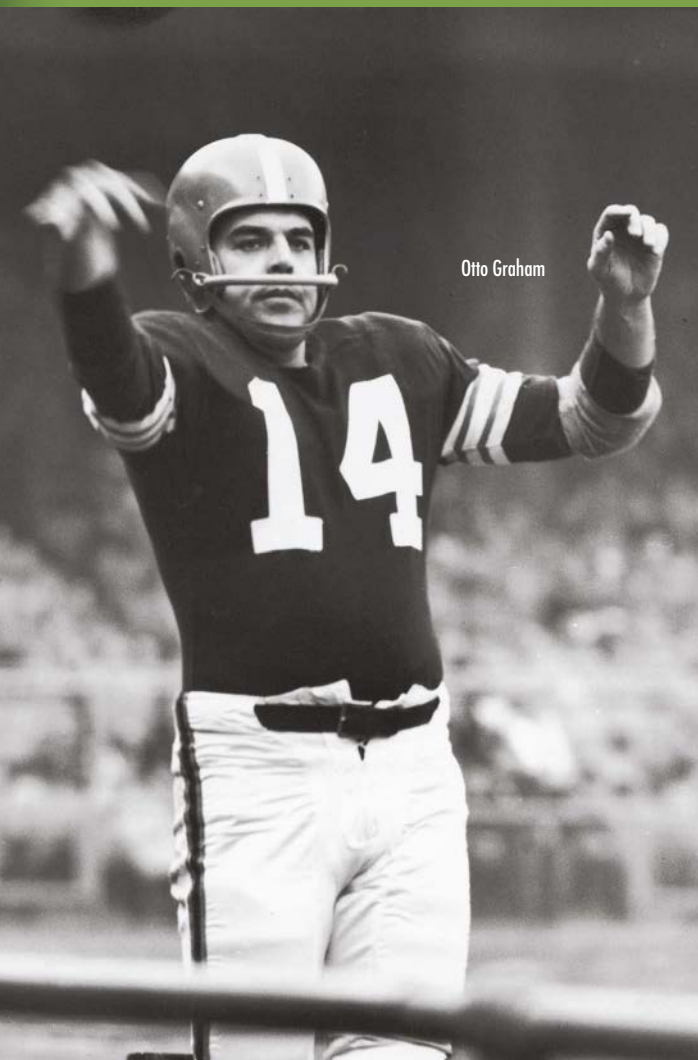

The back-and-forth, Hall of Fame-laden 1958 NFL Championship Game between the Giants and Colts was the first nationally televised NFL game and the first sudden-death overtime game in the league's history. It was watched by 45 million people, despite being blacked out in the New York area. The game was dubbed "The Greatest Game Ever Played" and has been credited with legitimizing the NFL. It also helped spark the formation of the AFL two years later.

Leading up to that, the mid-1950s was a passing of the torch for NFL stars and dominant teams pouring the foundation for what would vault the NFL into the mainstream. At the time, college football was arguably more nationally popular than the pro game. The Cleveland Browns dominated behind Coach Paul Brown and quarterback Otto Graham, winning four AAFC and three NFL championships from 1946 through 1955. The Detroit Lions also rose to prominence behind stars Bobby Layne and Doak Walker, winning championships in 1952 and 1953 over Cleveland, then losing to the Browns in 1954 title game.

OFTEN OVERLOOKED

Football trading cards were in their infancy, with Leaf producing sets in 1948 and 1949 before Bowman took over in 1950. The first few Bowman sets featured a slew of key Rookie Cards, and the uniqueness of the 1952 Bowman Large and Small sets make that a standout year. The 1954 and 1955 Bowman sets, however, often get overlooked, as they were the last two releases before Topps began producing NFL cards in 1956. Still, these two sets certainly deliver their own unique appeal, and in many ways perfectly reflect pro football at the time as kids across the country ripped into packs hoping to find big-name stars.

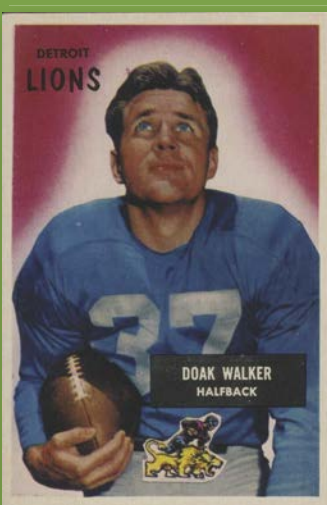

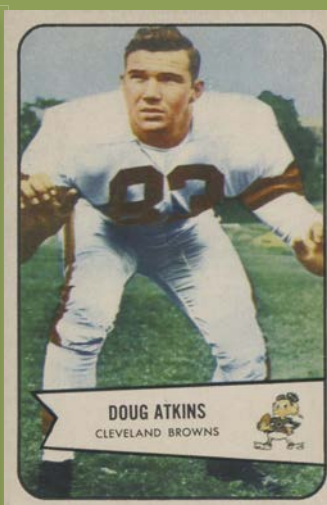

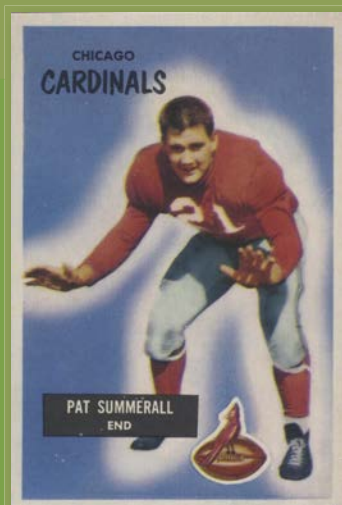

“The design of the 1955 set is probably the most notable deviation from all previous issues from Bowman,” says vintage football collector Alex Oswiecinski, who runs the Instagram account @VintageCardGuy dedicated to his impressive collection. “The ’54 design is similar to ’53 in my opinion, and while I like it, it doesn’t really stand out from previous designs. On the 1954s, right/left centering is tough. The white edges are relatively thin, so anything beyond 60/40 messes with eye appeal quickly. Overall, it seems easier to get higher grades (7 or 8) in ’55 vs. ’54.”

The 1954 set is an affordable one to complete at 128 cards. The large photos are wrapped by a thin white border, making centering a key issue. The colorized, almost cartoon-like images from past sets are gone, but these cards do have some funny dramatic poses that give them plenty of personality. The banner-shaped section at the bottom includes the player name, team name and logo. Cards #65 through #96, which would have been the third sheet printed, were all short-printed. The first card after that series, #97 of Tom Finnan comes as an error version misspelling his name as “Finnin” and a corrected version. The error is valued at around $60 while the corrected version is around $8.

There are 56 Rookie Cards in the 1954 set. The #23 George Blanda RC is by far the most valuable, recently moving up in the Beckett Database from $175 to $250 on the high end. A

PSA 8 grade sold for $650 in late February. He was a Hall of Fame quarterback and punter, playing for 27 years until age 48. He was a three-time AFL champion, a four-time Pro

Bowler, and had his most productive seasons in his mid- to late-30s. Interestingly, this card is used for the main image in Blanda's Wikipedia listing.

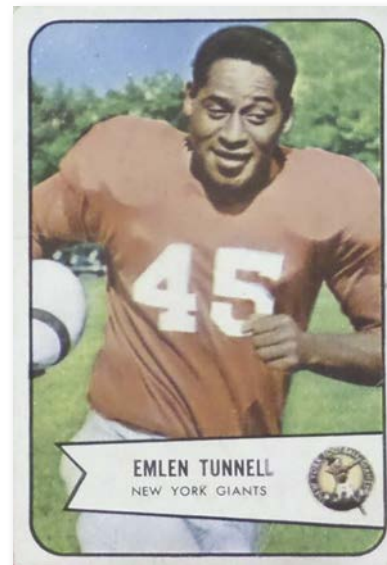

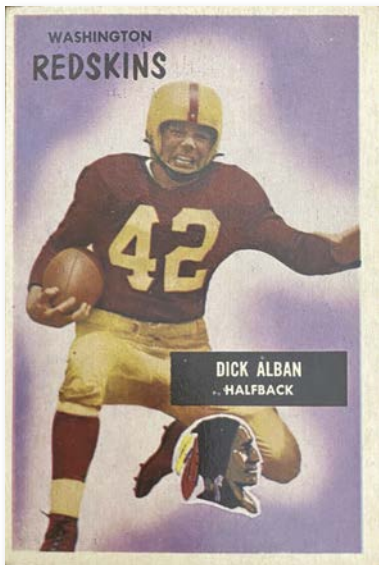

"I think the '54 George Blanda is the most popular as a quarterback/offensive star and the most significant rookie in the set," Alex says. "That and the Otto Graham can be tough. I have a couple PSA 8s of the Blanda that are nice and are long-term holds for me. I haven't found a decent Graham 7 or 8, but have a nicely centered 5 that holds the spot for me."

The #4 Doug Atkins RC also recently jumped in value topping out at around $150. Other top cards include #55 Frank Gifford, #40 Otto Graham, #128 John Lattner RC, #6 Joe Perry, #42 Y.A. Tittle, #53 Bobby Layne and #76 Leo Nomellini. The Lattner is the last card in the set and pictures him in his Notre Dame jersey. He won the Heisman the previous year, and 1954 was his only NFL season before joining the Air Force, where he suffered a career-ending knee injury during a football game. Those combined factors make his RC more desirable than it otherwise might be and the fifth-most valuable card in the set.

The 1955 set, Bowman's final release before Topps bought them out, was a huge deviation from the simplistic photo designs of the past. The player images are outlined with a soft glow against a pastel color background and a white border. It really makes the players pop and creates a colorful set to enjoy. There are 160 cards, which is Bowman's largest football checklist. Cards were likely divided into five 32-card sheets. There are no short prints, but many astute collectors say cards #65 to #160 are harder to find.

"I think it opened up the use of color in a different way," Alex says of the '55 design. "The halo effect around the player with a pop color as background was totally different. I think the '55 Bowmans are still unique historically, as I don't think the halo/shadow returned, but using bolder color backgrounds and isolating the player image was a design feature that may have grown from this set."

The set is packed with stars of the era, including Tom Landry, Doak Walker, Bobby Layne, Frank Gifford, Y.A. Tittle, and many others. The #152 Landry is his first card since the 1952 set and is the most valuable topping out at $200. A PSA

6 grade recently sold for $350. The most valuable cards are not Rookie Cards, but there are a few key RCs that give the set extra weight. There are 65 total RCs led by #52 Pat Summerall, #101 Bob St.Clair, #42 John Henry Johnson, #70 Jim Ringo, #8 Alan Ameche, #14 Len Ford, #119 Frank Gatski and #160 L.G. Dupre. These range from about $30 to $70.

These two sets represent a changing of the guard for what Topps would deliver in the coming years—Rookie Cards of Bart Starr, Johnny Unitas and Pilots memorabilia from the collection of Tim Jenkins.

STILL FLYING HIGH

Fifty Four years ago the Seattle Pilots were a one-and-done major league franchise. So why are they as popular as any team ever?

BY KEVIN GLEW

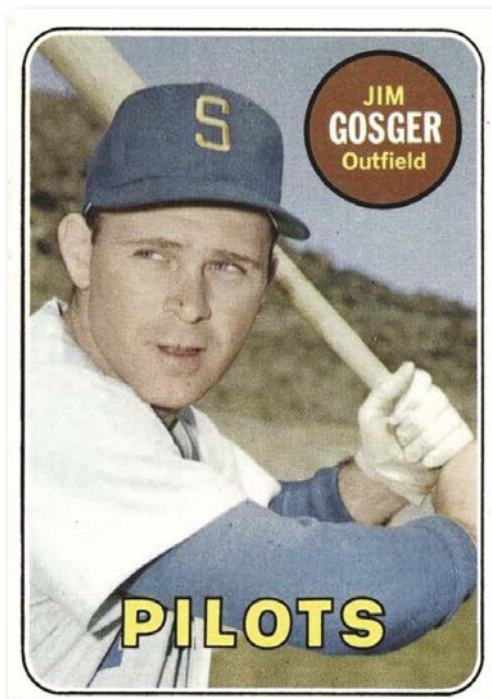

The Seattle Pilots may have been grounded after one major league season 54 years ago, but the appetite for their cards, memorabilia and game-worn items remains in full flight.

Just ask Dave Burns, who started collecting autographs from Seattle Pilots players a little over a decade ago.

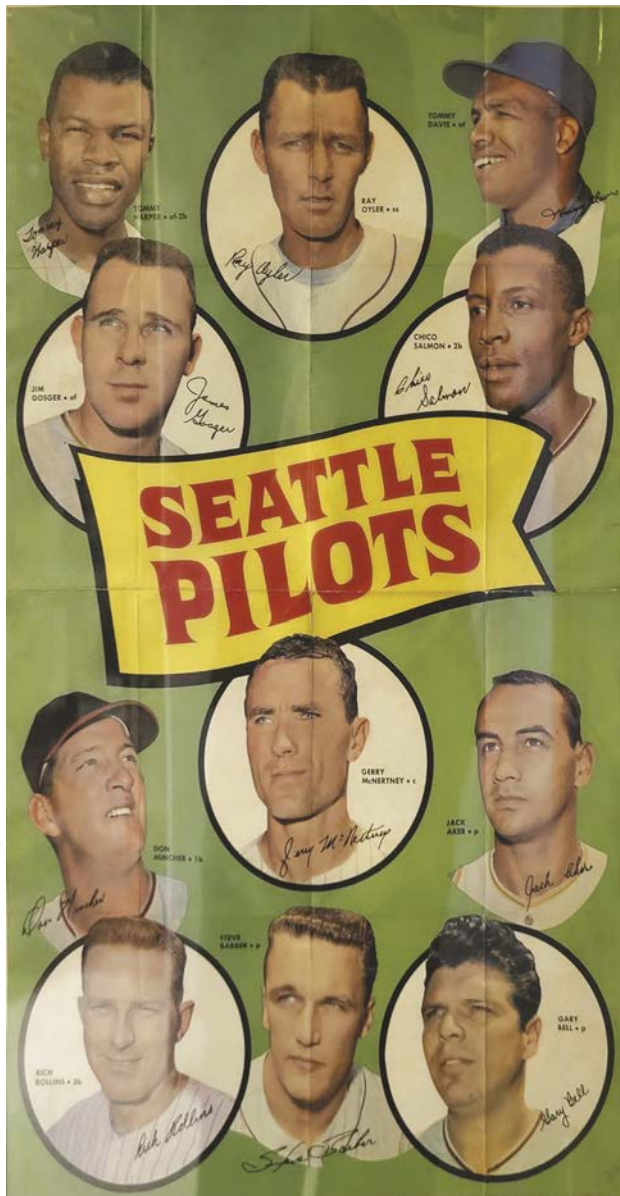

“Truthfully, I was blown away at how much interest there still was,” said Burns, who has created custom cards and lives in Indiana. “We’re talking about a team from 50-some years ago that was a one-hit wonder.”

And not a very good “one-hit wonder” at that.

The team went 64-98 and averaged just 8,268 fans to its home games. Sure, they had Don Mincher, who clubbed 25 home runs, and Tommy Harper, who stole 73 bases, but the majority of their players were unknowns.

Jim Gosger's 1969 Topps card was the first to feature a player in a Pilots uniform.

1969 Topps Team Poster

The Pilots team card is a high number (#713) and remains a must-have to Pilots fans.

“The Pilots were just a collection of has-beens or players that hadn’t proven themselves,” said Tim Jenkins, who owns an extensive collection of Pilots cards, autographs and memorabilia. “They were all trying to hold on the best they could to play major league baseball. They were a motley crew.”

So, what is it about this “motley crew” that still resonates with fans and collectors?

How is this one-year squad that became the Milwaukee Brewers in 1970 still so popular that it has spawned three Facebook pages, a documentary and a well-attended reunion on their 40th anniversary?

“First of all, Ball Four,” explained Charles Kapner, who attended Pilots games as a 13-year-old and owns one of the world’s largest collections of Pilots memorabilia. “Ball Four is always going to be considered an interesting book and it’s so much about the Pilots that it can’t help but keep that interest out there.”

Written by former big league pitcher Jim Bouton and published in 1970, Ball Four was a behind-the-scenes diary of Bouton’s 1969 season with the Pilots. It was the first book to really pull back the curtains and offer an irreverent and no-holds-barred look at what it was like to be a big leaguer and their shenanigans on and off the field.

That book made it hard not to be intrigued by the Pilots players, many of whom have remained accessible over the years. Kapner befriended Bouton and ex-Pilots right-hander Ray Peters, and Jim Gosger, the Pilots’ Opening Day center fielder, regularly comments on Pilots Facebook pages.

“I think some of the players are amused or surprised at how passionate the following still is for a one-year team,” said Kapner. “When we had the reunion in 2009, we had about nine or 10 players come back and they were just overwhelmed.”

So just how passionate are Pilots collectors?

Well, Jenkins has seen bidding exceed $1,000 for a Pilots bib that was offered for sale in the team’s programs. The bib is one of the Holy Grails for Pilots collectors.

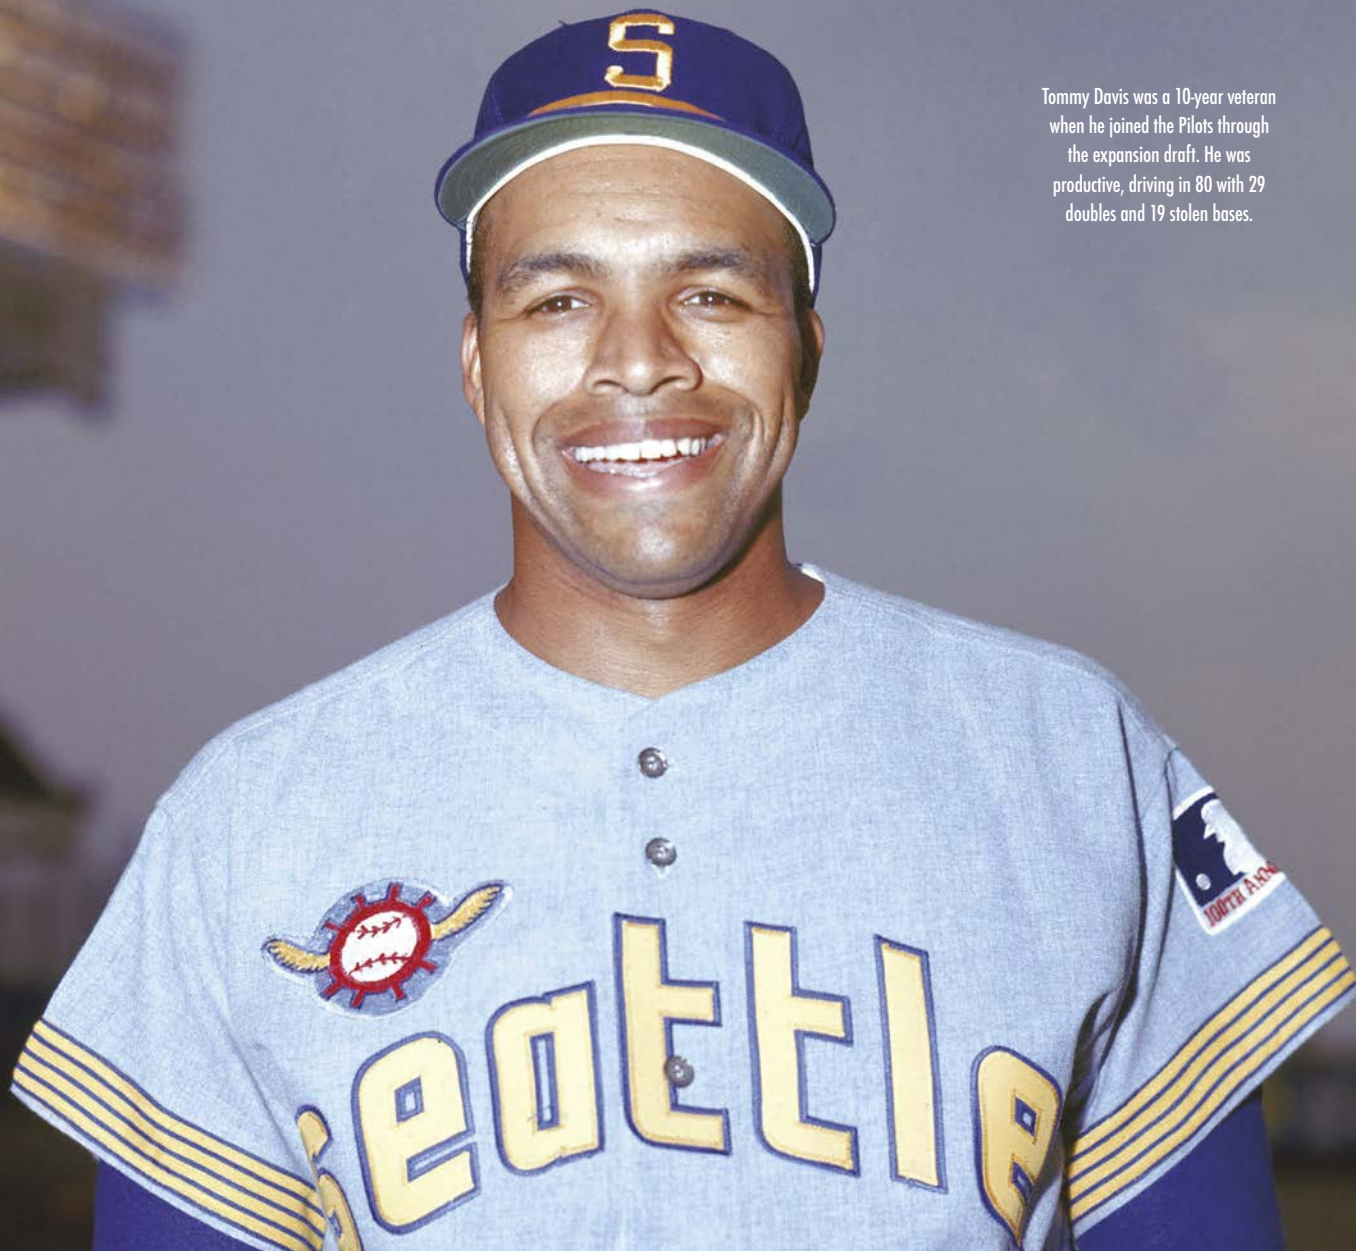

“If you actually bought one, you probably put it on your baby and it got baby food on it,” said Jenkins. “There are two collectors here in Seattle that have them and the bibs are pristine, so I have actually seen the baby bib.”

Jenkins says for a team that was only around for one season, the Pilots produced a lot of promotional items - ranging from charms and pocket knives to broaches and tie tacks. And then there are the more traditionally collected items like baseball cards, autographs, tickets, programs and game-worn jerseys.

“I’m astounded that here I am, 54 years after the Pilots, and I’m still finding things that I didn’t know existed,” said Kapner.

Kapner has helped keep the memory of the Pilots alive. Over the years, he has put together more than 50 public displays of his collection.

“I feel like it’s a way of giving back,” he said. “If I can put stuff out there for other people to see and enjoy, that brings me satisfaction.”

Kapner doesn’t like to talk about the value of his items and Jenkins is much the same, but Jenkins has watched the prices of Pilots items increase in recent years.

“I think there is probably more people out there collecting vintage stuff and the Pilots are really the perfect storm for collectors,” said Jenkins.

Here’s a rundown of some of the Pilots cards, autographs, memorabilia, and game-worn items:

TOPPS CARDS AND TEAM POSTER

The Pilots are featured in the 1969 and 1970 Topps sets. Many of the players in the 1969 series are shown in their previous teams’ uniforms. The first player to be photographed in a Pilots uniform is Jim Gosger (#482). Jenkins points out that Jerry McNertney (#534), Marty Pattin (#563), Jack Aker (#612), John Kennedy (#631) and Gus Gil (#651) are also photographed in their Pilots uniforms.

GETTY IMAGES

The most valuable 1969 Topps Pilots cards are the white letter variations. On these cards, the player's first and last name were highlighted in white letters rather than the first name being in yellow as intended. Pilots players Rich Rollins (#451), Gosger (#482) and Diego Segui (#511) have white letter variations. A PSA NM-MT 8 Gosger card sold for $493.20 on eBay in early October.

The Pilots' move to Milwaukee wasn't officially announced until April 1, 1970. By that time, the 1970 Topps set was already in production, so the set offers photos of the players in Pilots uniforms. One of the most valuable 1970 Topps Pilots cards is the team card (#713).

"That was in the high number series and they didn't print as many cards," explained Jenkins.

One of the most valuable Pilots items produced by Topps is the 1969 Topps Team poster. Measuring approximately 12" by 20", this was part of a limited 24-poster set. It offers head shots of 11 Pilots players.

"When I was collecting cards in 1969 in Central Washington, that poster never showed up," said Jenkins.

The posters had to be folded into packs and are difficult to find in high grade. A Pilots poster was being offered online for $195.

AUTOGRAPHS

A popular pastime for Pilots collectors has been obtaining the autographs of former players.

Jenkins and Kapner cite Miguel Fuentes as the most elusive signature. He was a right-handed pitcher who made eight appearances near the end of the 1969 season. Sadly, Fuentes was shot and killed outside a bar in Puerto Rico on January 29, 1970.

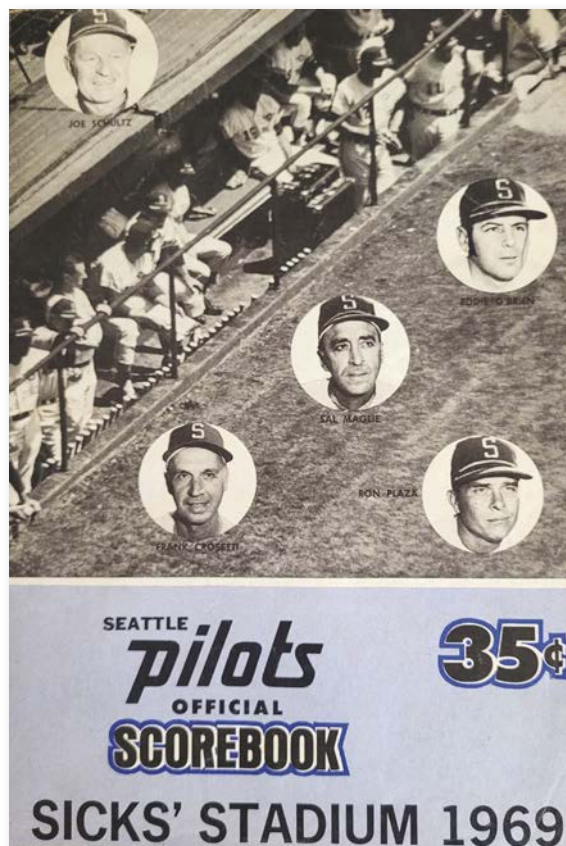

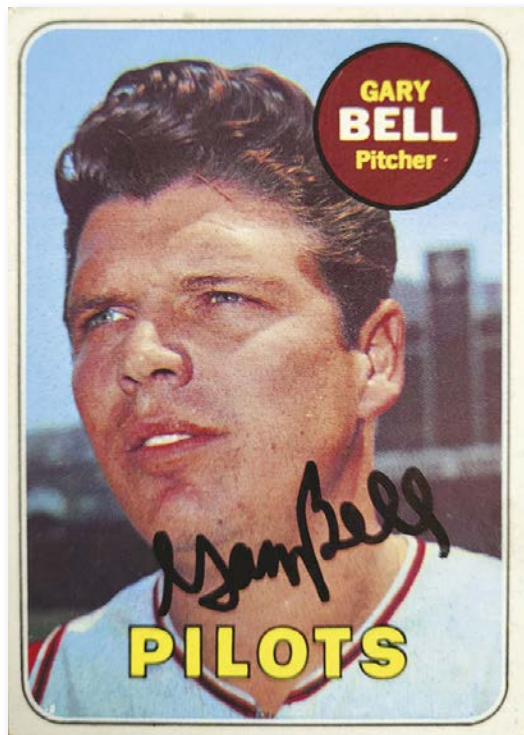

"I have an autograph of something from every Pilots player and their coaches except for Miguel Fuentes," said Jenkins. "There are only a few Miguel Fuentes autographs out there and I do know two people that have them."

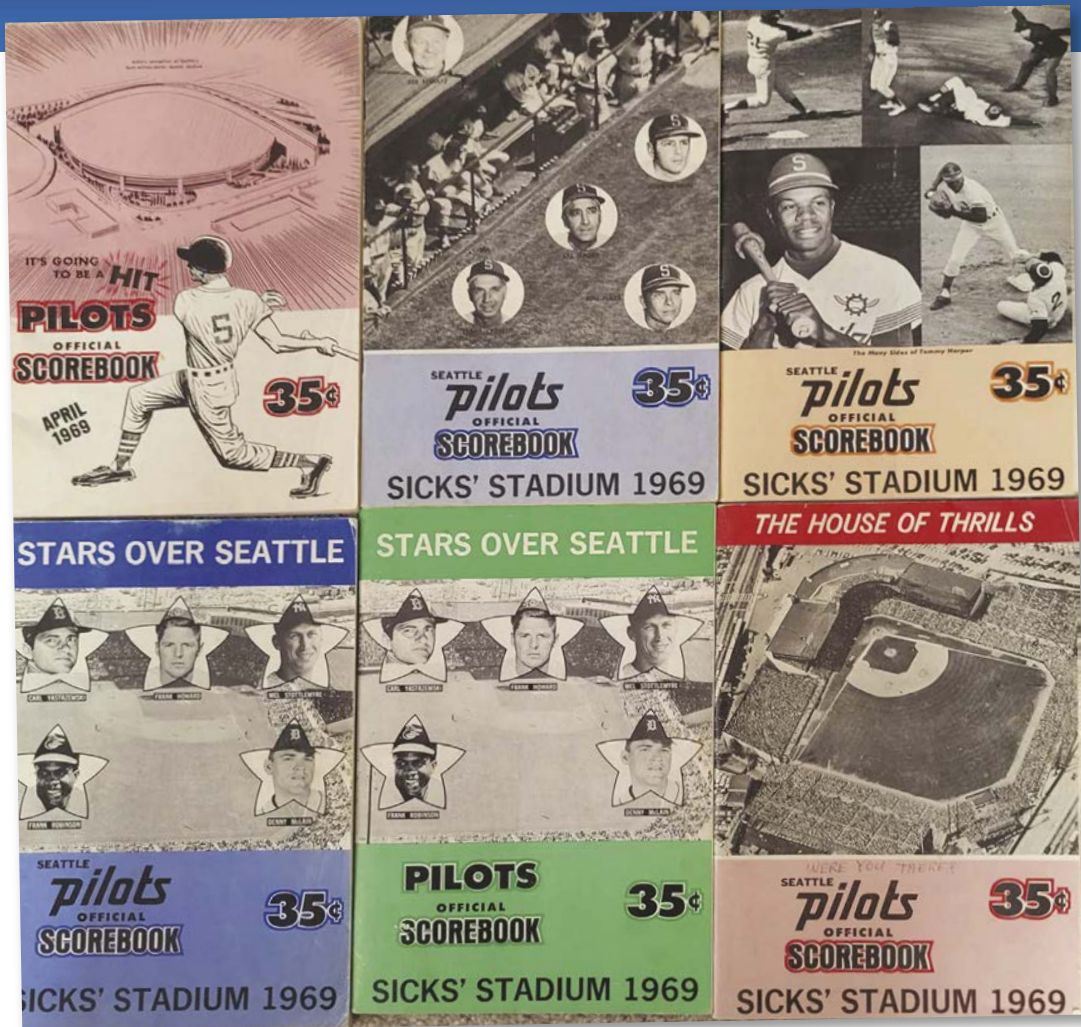

Another tough Pilots signature was that of pitcher Mike Marshall. The durable right-hander, who pitched in 20 games for the club in 1969, steadfastly refused to sign autographs for most of his life. He passed away in 2021.

"He would never ever sign, but then towards the end of his life, he would sign for like $150 to $200 a card," said Burns. "He said, 'Hey, if somebody's dumb enough to pay that much for an autograph, I'll give it to them.'"

Another elusive autograph belongs to outfielder Steve Hovley.

"Steve Hovley refuses to sign anything," said Doug Reuscher, an autograph collector based in Northern Kentucky. "If you can get him to sign anything, that would be a miracle. I would love to have his autograph on that 1970 Pilots card of him."

TICKETS AND MEMORABILIA

A ticket from the home opener played at Sick's Stadium on April 11, 1969 is a very desirable collectible. A reported 14,993 watched the Pilots beat the Chicago White Sox 7-0.

Kapner owns a ticket from the opener.

"They had Opening Day Friday, Opening Night Saturday and Opening Sunday," explained Kapner. "It was a three-game series against the White Sox. Those three tickets were all printed in larger form, so their size is bigger than the regular home game ticket. And they all were done very ornately, so that they would be collectible."

As a result, many of these tickets were saved.

Two ticket stubs from the home opener recently fetched $475 online.

A tougher ticket, which Kapner also possesses, is one from the first game in Pilots' history that they played on the road against the California Angels.

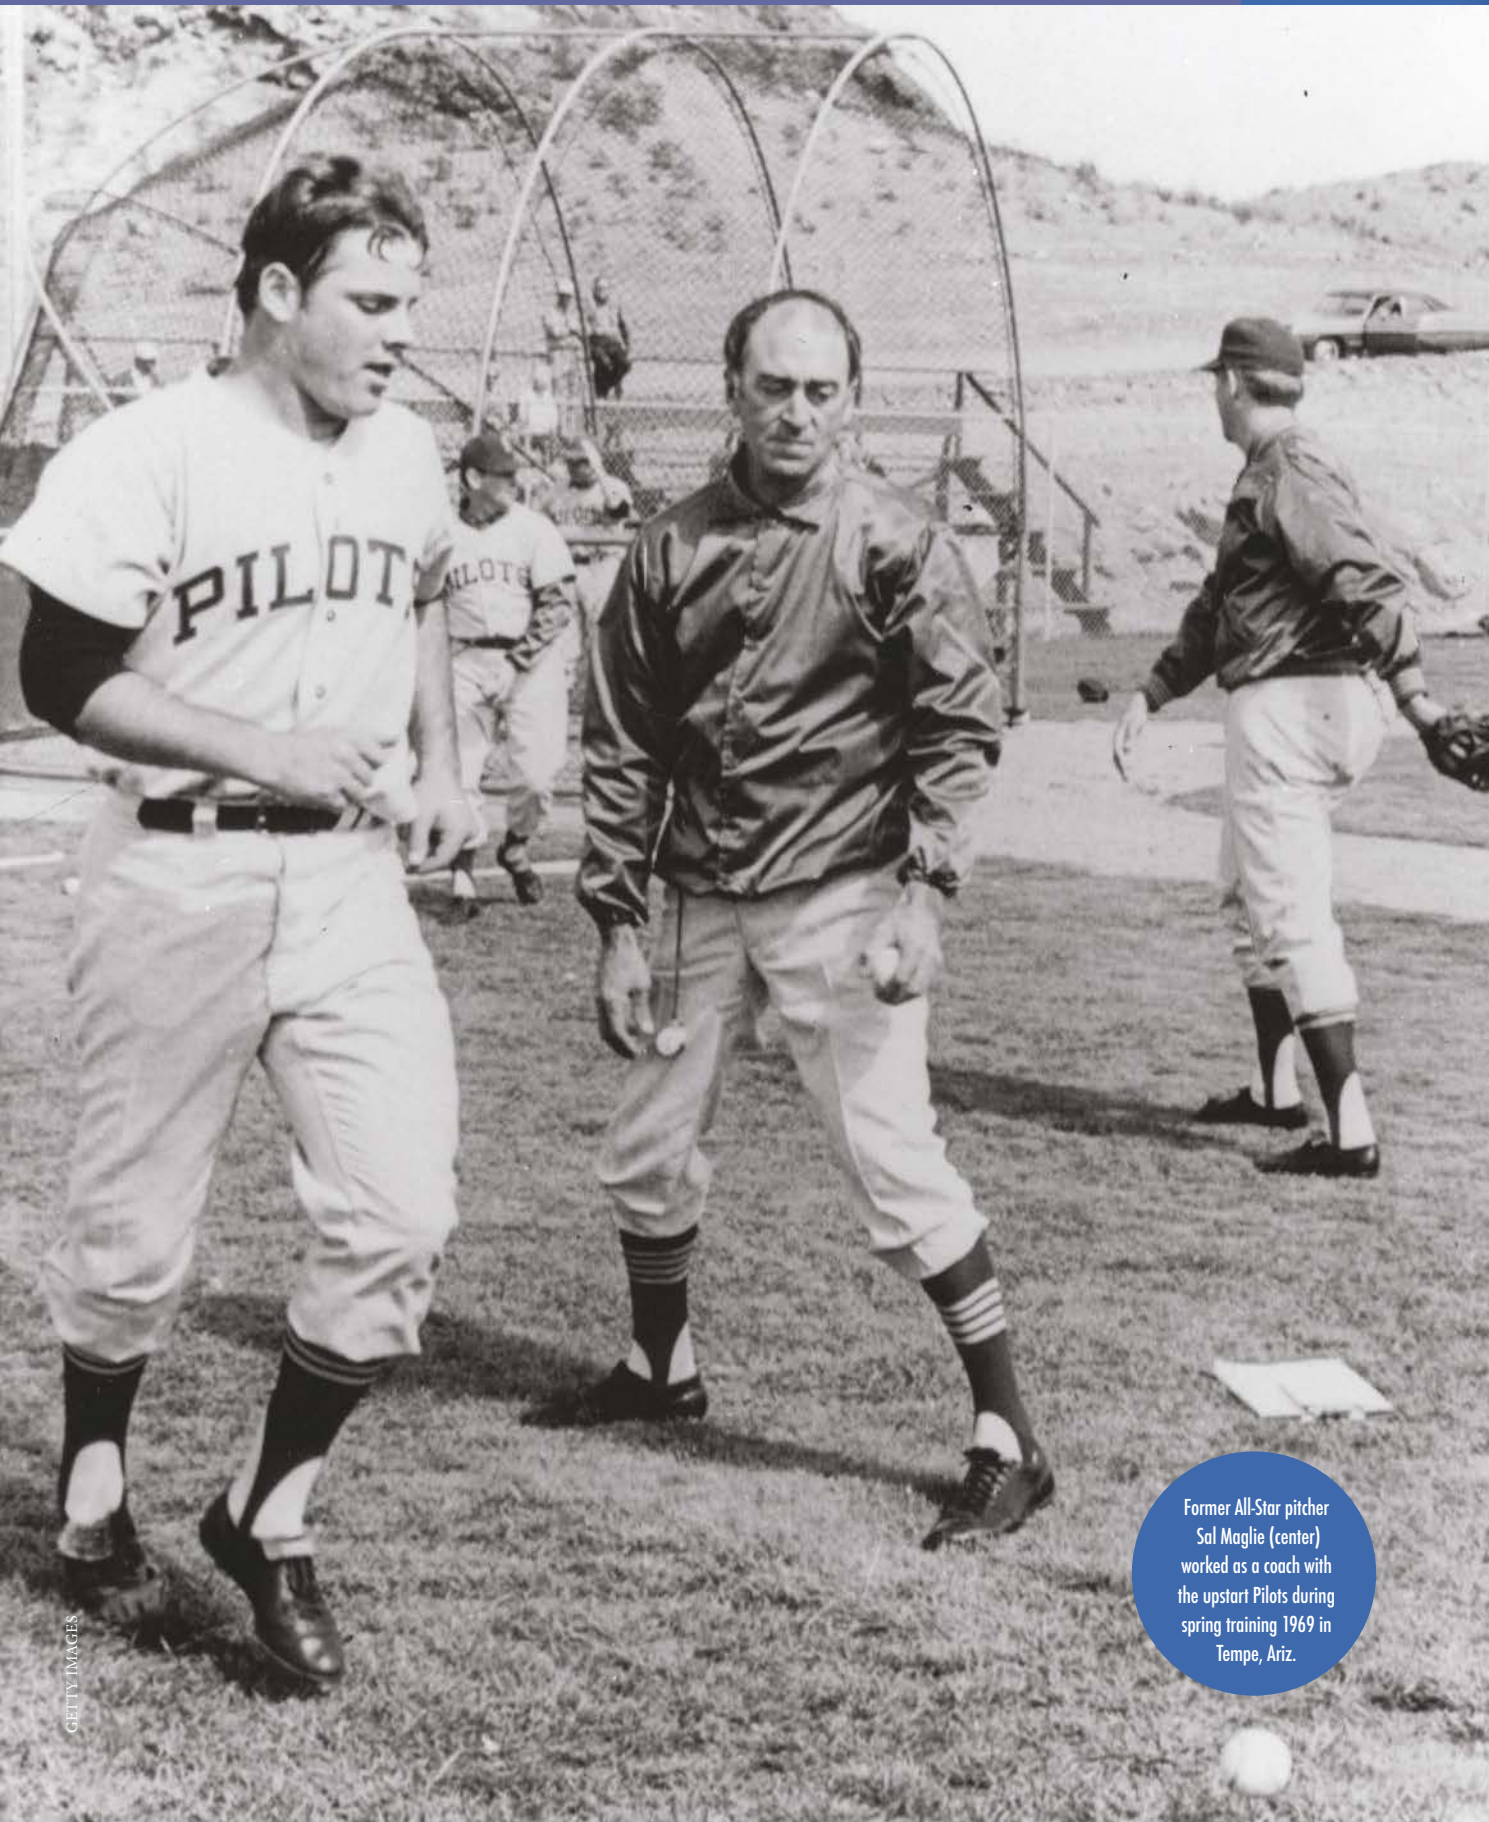

Pilots programs are still readily available. "There are a lot of them out there," said Kapner. "They have a value, but you've got to find a person that wants to buy them."

In recent months, they have been selling for $25-$40.

The 1969 Pilots yearbook is also coveted. Jenkins says many of the photos in it were taken in spring training and some are not high quality.

"It's a great piece to have, but it's not exactly a super attractive yearbook," said Jenkins.

Former All-Star pitcher Sal Maglie (center) worked as a coach with the upstart Pilots during spring training 1969 in Tempe, Ariz.

Since last August, a few have sold on eBay for prices ranging from $45-$110 based on condition.

GAME WORN MEMORABILIA

Game worn hats and jerseys are two of the most expensive Pilots items. It's rare when a game worn Pilots hat surfaces for sale.

"You think about a cap and it gets all sweaty and the players probably didn't think much of them. They probably tossed most of them away at some point," said Jenkins.

The design of the hats has also made them popular.

"It's supposed to look like what an airline pilot would wear," said Jenkins.

A Skip Lockwood game worn hat sold for $523 in a Goldin Auctions sale in October 2019.

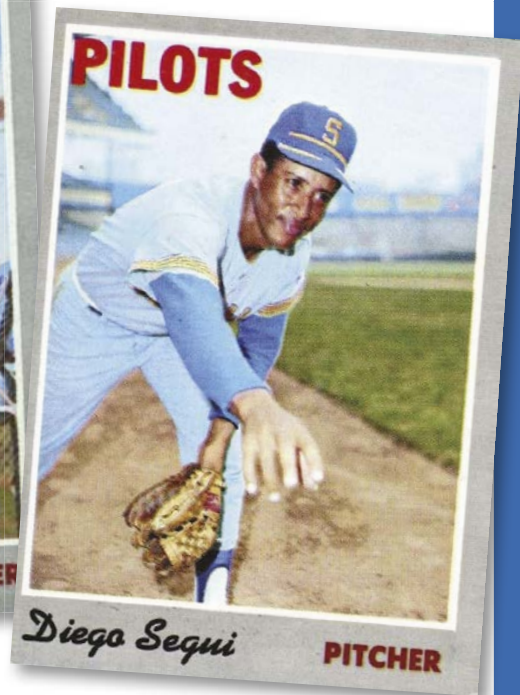

Game worn jerseys command even higher prices.

During the season, the Pilots had a home white jersey and a blue road jersey. Kapner and Jenkins note that these rarely surface because some were reused by minor league teams.

A Dick Bates road jersey was sold by Mile High Card Company for $8,495 back in January 2012. More recently a full road uniform worn by coach Ron Plaza commanded $11,011 in an SCP Auctions sale in January 2017. In November 2019, MEARS sold a Don Mincher game-worn home jersey for $3,802.

FOREIGN INTRIGUE

A little-known sticker set delivers challenging singles of some of the game's greatest stars from half a century ago.

BY DAN FLEMING

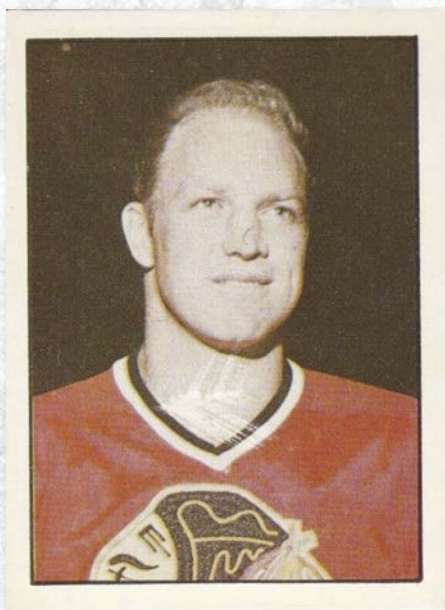

Collectors can be a bit provincial when defining what they pursue. For many, if a card isn't standard size and issued in a pack by a major manufacturer, then it holds no interest for them.

I get it. I was like that once. I grew up wanting to be able to look up all my cards in the pages of this magazine back when it was called Beckett Hockey Card Monthly, and if I couldn't find it there then I was out.

Of course, tastes can change over time. For me, that happened when a guy I used to trade by mail with sent me a care package of some Chicago Blackhawks that he thought I'd like. It was there, mixed in with some 1971-72 O-Pee-Chee Booklets and various 1980s issues that I found small stickers of Stan Mikita, Bobby Hull, Keith Magnuson, and Tony Esposito.

These were amazing! New (to me) but clearly vintage items of some of the greatest stars in my team's history, the guys I grew up hearing stories about from my dad. I had no idea what they were, but pieced together that they were part of a large sticker set from 1972 that was printed in Italy – yeah, I read the back.

Bobby Hull

But that's where it ended. None of the local dealers could offer any further information, let alone help me add to my collection. It was years before a trip to the Toronto Sport Card Expo unlocked the mysteries of what is known as the 1972 Swedish Semic World Championship series, a set that I firmly believe ranks among the very best sets issued that decade.

The stickers were issued in slim packets of five in both Finland and Sweden ahead of the 1972 tournament, which was staged in Prague, Czechoslovakia. (An interesting side note: This was the first event where masks were mandated for goaltenders.) The best I can tell, the price at the time was the equivalent of 10 cents – perfectly affordable for the average kid to pick up one or two at a time. The full set amounted to 233 stickers, which were intended to be placed in a commemorative album.

The main focus of the set was the stars of the national teams competing in the event, including all six teams from the A Pool – Czechoslovakia, Soviet Union, Sweden, Finland, Goalie Mike Curran in action against the Soviets at the 1972 Olympics.

GETTY IMAGES

West Germany, and Switzerland – along with the United States, which played in the B Pool despite having claimed silver at the 1972 Sapporo Olympics.

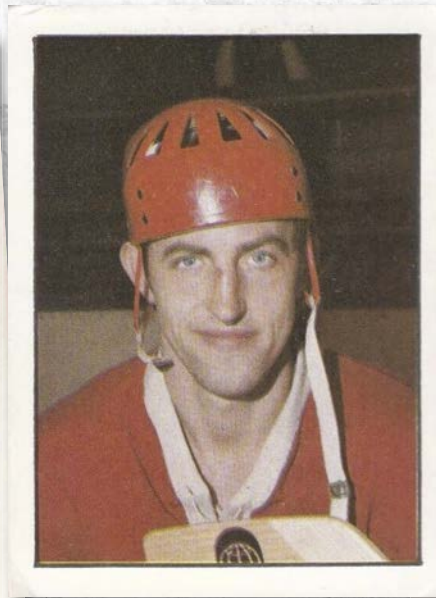

If I'm being honest, I didn't recognize many of the players when I first started piecing the set together, but the process of researching their stories was a big part of what made it so much fun to build. Turns out there were literally dozens of IIHF Hall of Famers included, including multiple players who took part in the legendary Summit Series between the Soviet Union and Canada just a few months later.

Among them were Valeri Kharlamov (#17), Boris Mikhailov (#13), Vladimir Petrov (#16), Alexander Maltsev (#10), and Vladislav Tretiak (#20).

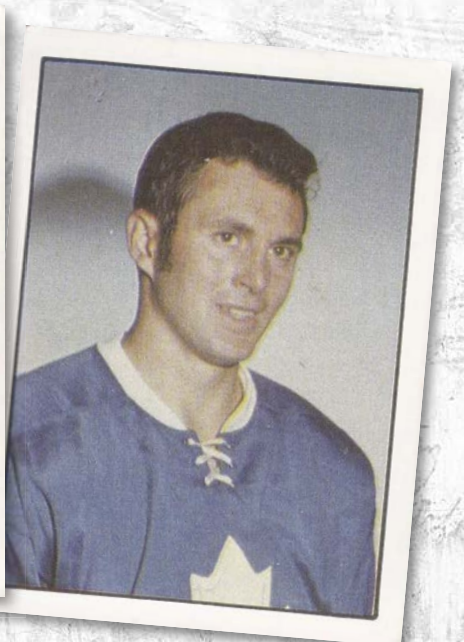

Tournament champion Czechoslovakia's roster included future IIHF Hall of Famers Jiri Holocek (#22), Frantisek Pospisil (#22), Vaclav Nedomansky (#33), and Ivan Hlinka (#40), the man whose name is alongside Wayne Gretzky for the premier under-18 tournament held every August. The Swedish side featured future WHA and NHL stars Anders Hedberg (#69), Inge Hammarstrom (#61), and Thommie Bergman (#55).

Vaclav Nedomansky

Boris Mikhailov

Paul Henderson

And then there's the fascinating time capsule that is the Team USA subset. The 21-card grouping includes seven players from the team that won that shocking silver medal a few months earlier in Japan, including star goalie Mike Curran (#118), who went on to spend parts of five seasons in the WHA.

The American subset also features goaltender Carl Wetzel (#117). He played seven games for the Red Wings and North Stars between 1964-68 but had no NHL cards making this sticker a must-have for team and goalie collectors. Former Red Wing and Scout Henry Boucha (#126) also earned his first collectible in the set.

Sadly, the checklist overlooks a 16-year-old defenseman who went on to join his dad in the NHL, and the Hockey Hall of Fame, a few years later, named Mark Howe.

But those singles are just window-dressing on the way to the most interesting part of the set.

The subset of NHL stars runs from #163-233. The stickers clearly weren't licensed by the NHL, a situation evident by the cropping of the photos to ensure no team logos were showing, but the checklist includes a who's who of the era's stars, including Bobby Orr (#223), Gordie Howe (#190), Bernie Parent (#175), Jacques Plante (#169), Jean Beliveau (#207), and Dave Keon (#164). It also features Paul Henderson (#167), a player who would go on to gain some measure of fame (and become the most hated man in the Soviet Union) just a few months down the road.

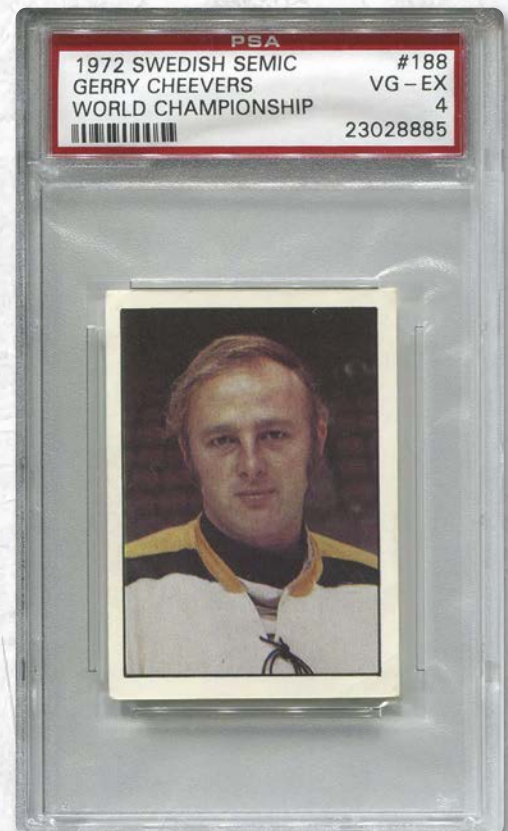

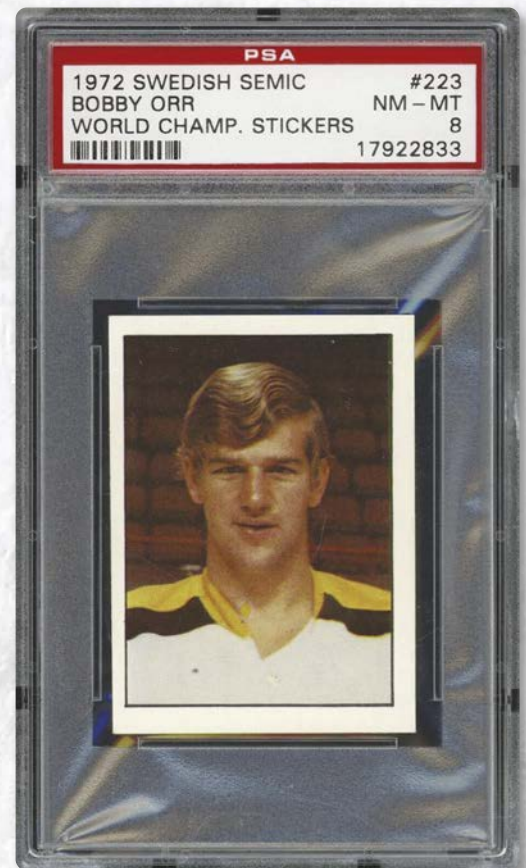

All in all, 21 future Hall of Famers are found in this subset, including Glenn Hall (#187), Gerry Cheevers (#188), Phil Esposito (#184), and Jean Ratelle (#214).

While the stickers can provide a challenge to find half a century later, their popularity among European kids at the time ensures they're not impossible. The real trick might be finding them in a condition that meets your needs. For my purposes, pretty much anything that's intact and doesn't look like it had spent decades at the bottom of a Jofa hockey bag in Sodertalje works just fine. That's kept the ongoing set-building process affordable, but your mileage may vary.

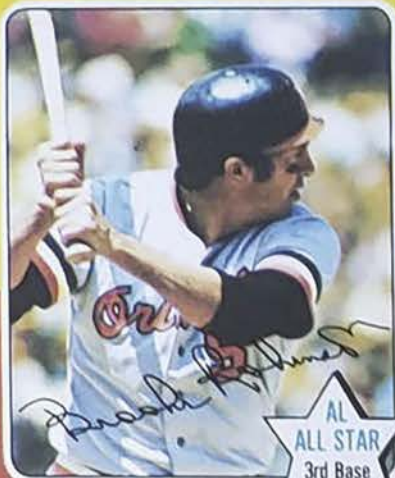

Interestingly, but not surprisingly considering their age and star power, the NHL singles have earned a cult following in the grading community over the past couple of years. Also not surprising, considering the vast majority were peeled and stuck into the collectible album, is that high-end examples are non-existent. There are just four PSA Mint 9 stickers in circulation, with none higher. Orr is the most heavily graded, with 30 copies slabbed, including six NrMt 8 singles. There are 15 Howes, including four PSA 8 examples.

The best BGS slabbed single in circulation is a NrMt+ 7.5 Orr, so if you have a Mint Or Bust mindset, you've got your work cut out for you ... but that doesn't mean those copies aren't out there somewhere.

In a more open-minded hobby, maybe the 1972 Swedish Semic World Championship set would be regarded as a cornerstone of any vintage collection. Instead, we can enjoy its unique qualities as our little secret.

How Topps has celebrated the Midsummer Classic over the years

BY GREGORY GAY

The arrival of the balanced schedule in Major League Baseball in 2023, in which every team plays every other team regardless of league affiliation, signaled another step toward uniformity throughout the game ... and a step away from the romance, mystery and one-of-a-kind nature of the All-Star Game.

Beginning with interleague play more than 25 years ago and then a universal designated hitter in 2022, the distinction between the American and National leagues has eroded over the past generation and it probably won't take another generation for a complete realignment of the leagues, along geographic lines.

Consider four, four-team divisions in each league with the Mets and Yankees together in the American League and the Angels and Dodgers together in the National League - the traditional label of a "National League team" or "American League" team finally erased. One may wonder whether the All-Star Game, which has fed off the rivalry between the two leagues since its inception in 1933, will survive.

"The Midsummer Classic" has been part of baseball history for 90 years, its moments interwoven into each MLB season. Although always known as an exhibition, it was rarely treated as such. All-Star moments, like Carl Hubbell striking out five Hall of Famers in a row, Tony Perez delivering the game-winning hit in the 15th inning and Pete Rose knocking catcher Ray Fosse into home-plate-collision lore, rank with the most well-known moments in the game.

Further evidence of the All-Star Game's importance over time can be found in the way Topps has celebrated the game over the years.

All-Star cards have been a part of Topps sets since the late 1950s and although the game has not been recognized in every set, the majority of Topps' flagship sets, even to this day, contain some reference to the ASG.

The intrigue for collectors of All-Star cards is the variety of ways Topps has noted the previous year's All-Star teams and players, never staying with one single version of honoring the All-Stars for too long.

PICKING THE TEAMS

From the 1950s through the 1980s, Topps' treatment of All-Stars on its cards can be divided into specific eras.

From 1958-62 and 1968-70, Topps' All-Star cards reflected the All-Star teams selected at the end of the previous season by either Sport Magazine or The Sporting News.

From 1974-80, Topps' All-Stars were taken directly from the previous year's All-Star Game, choosing to honor the player voted as the starter at each position or selected as the starting pitcher by the manager.

The 1980s invited a much looser selection process in which All-Stars were recognized but a number of players didn't necessarily start the previous year's July game and in some cases weren't even selected to play! It's something of mystery as to how Topps selected those teams.

The way in which Topps presented the players in each set varied as well. Topps would either issue separate cards of each All-Star player – a special All-Star card, so that the player had at least two cards in the set – or note the player's All-Star status directly on his individual card, presumably providing that player with truly more star power than the average player's card.

Topps created separate All-Star cards of players from 1958-62 and 1968-70 and then again starting in 1982. From 1975-81, Topps recognized the All-Star players on their own cards. 1974 Topps is a special case, as that year Topps created an All-Star subset in which the respective All-Star starter on each team for a given position shared the card, so two players per card.

Designs of the All-Star cards run the gamut, but nearly all of them are among the most colorful cards in that year's set and most star-spangled.

THE ALL-STAR LINEUP

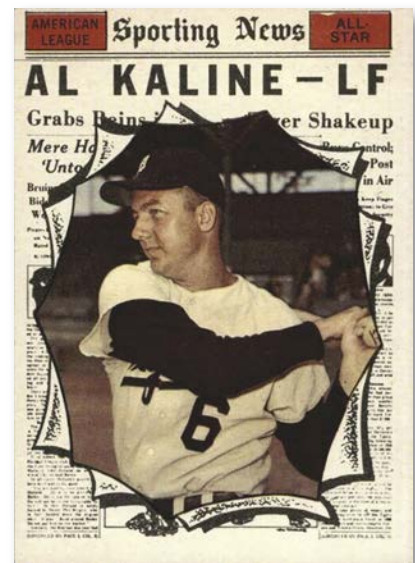

Here is a year-by-year look at a few of the design treatments for Topps All-Stars, between 1958-81:

1958: The first year of celebrating MLB's All-Stars. Topps used Sport Magazine's All-Star team as the frame of reference, including managers, and honored 22 individuals on cards 475-495, which are the final cards in the set. The natural backgrounds on the photos are removed for red (American League) or blue (National League) backdrops with rows of white stars.

1959: Topps' All-Stars brought up the rear of the set once again, but this year the manufacturer used The Sporting News All-Star selections. Twenty-two individuals were honored. Each card features either the American League or National League logos. A photo of the player is superimposed on the logo, with a badge frame for the AL and a home plate frame for the NL. Backgrounds are blue for the AL and red for the NL.

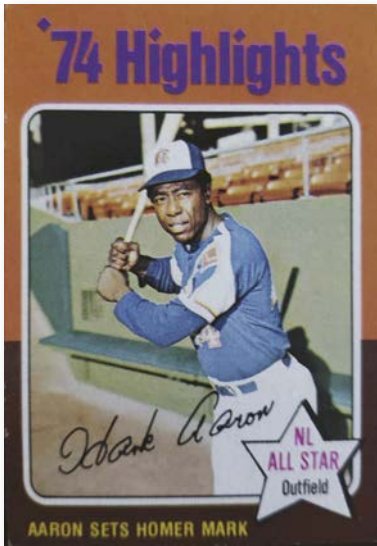

1961: Topps debuted the popular newspaper page format with the '61 set, and they would use it again with its 1970 All-Star subset. The individual's name and position are the newspaper page "headline" with the picture of the player "ripping through" the page. Topps chose the all-stars based on The Sporting News All-Star team.

1969: All-Star cards are presented vertically, unlike the year before when '68 Topps All-Stars were all horizontal. But like '68, the '69 players were from The Sporting News team again. The look of the cards is fairly popular as the player's head shot is shown large and in color with an action shot containing the player in the background in black-and-white. A distinctive red border is used for AL stars and a green border for NL stars. The Sporting News banner is surrounded by stars.

Mix of cards from 1976-1980

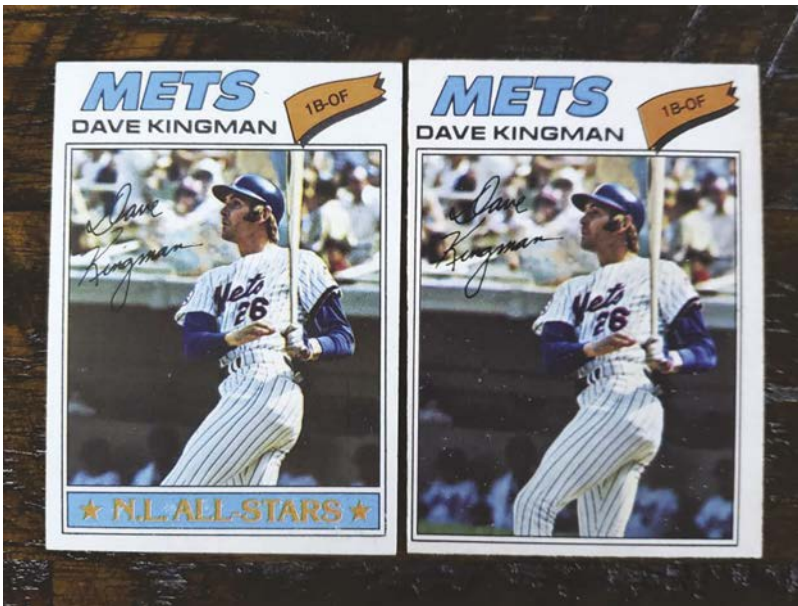

For some reason, Topps left off the star logo on the front of Reggie's 1975 card, an obvious miss when compared to the other All-Stars in the set. And what was up with that color scheme? All-Stars that year featured yellow and red borders.

1975: For the first time, the All-Star notation is on the player's base card – there is no extra All-Star card as in previous years. The All-Star players are not grouped together by card number as in previous sets, and a pattern had been set for the next six years as Topps based stars on who was the top vote-getter the season before or the chosen starting pitcher. The most eye-catching aspects of the cards, in typical '75 fashion, are the bright yellow-and-red borders reserved for the All-Stars and a large five-pointed star that replaces the position baseball feature on other cards in the set.

1977: Topps moves from stars to banners for its '77 All-Stars. A large red banner sits at the bottom of the photo for AL All-Stars and a blue banner for NL All-Stars. The O-Pee-Chee cards from this year do not show the banners, offering a more expansive version of the same photo.

The All-Star banner was present for 1977 Topps, but the '77 O-Pee-Chee versions did not include the banner.

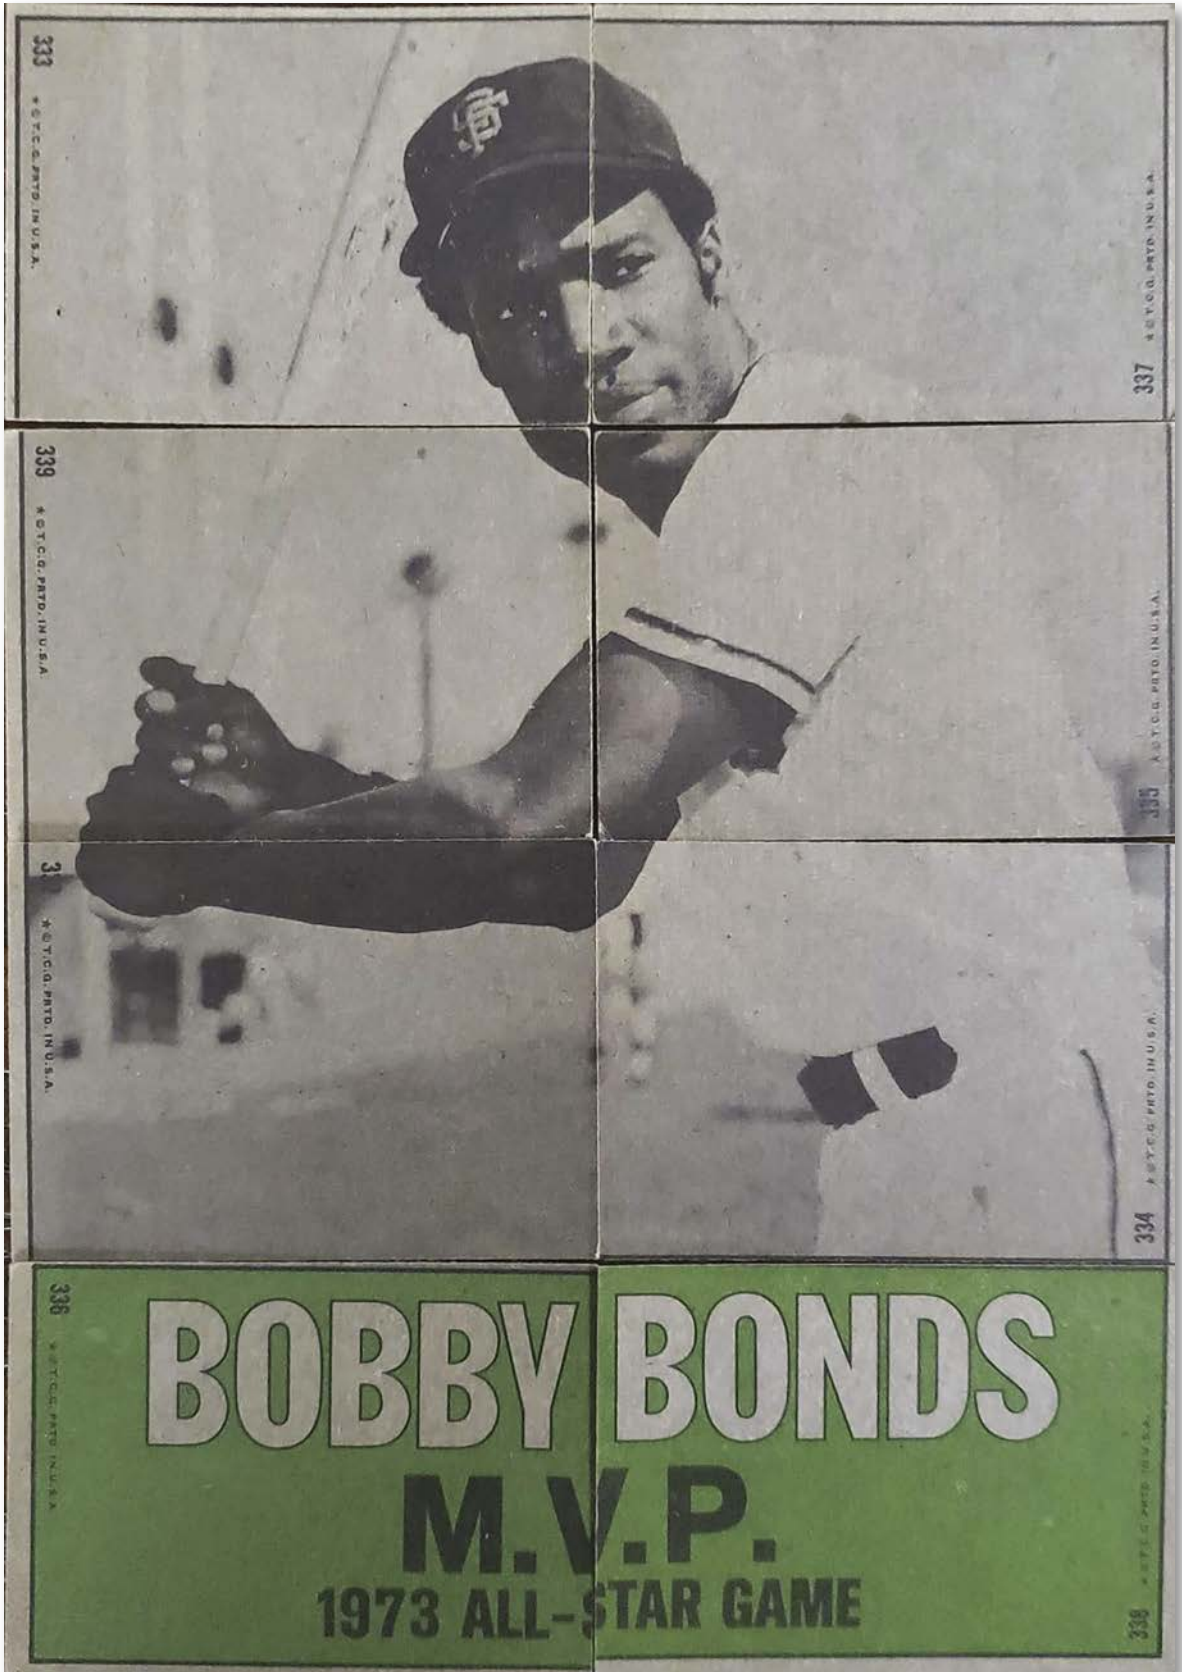

1978: In another popular look, Topps presents All-Star badges that float in the upper half of the card.

From 1958-81, there have been deviations from the game's starters and just plain misses by Topps, especially in the '70s. ASG starters like Richie Zisk in '78 and Freddie Patek in '79 did not receive All-Star recognition.

The most oft-noted miss comes in 1975 as every star starter from 1974 is noted except for one of the most popular players of the time, Reggie Jackson, who started in right field during the '74 All-Star game in Pittsburgh.

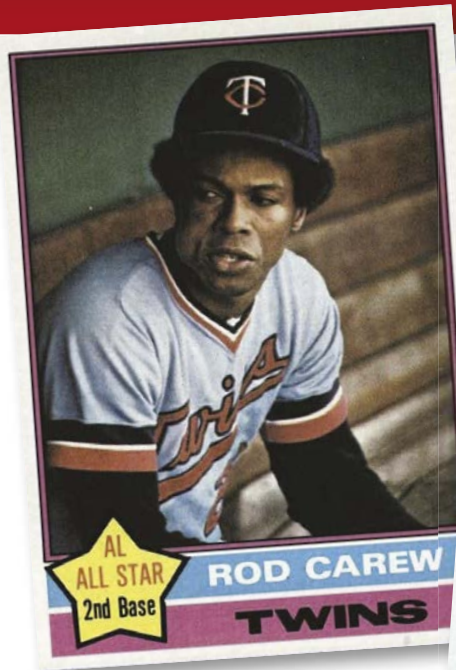

Jackson's '75 Topps card does not feature a star in the right corner, nor is the border colored yellow-and-red. The miss is so obvious that several collectors have "corrected" the snub by creating a '75 All-Star Jackson card dressed in the proper colors.

But the Jackson goof isn't the only odd element about the '75 All-Stars. Hank Aaron's star notation is not on his base cards at No. 660 in the set but at card No. 1, his Highlights card. Topps did not color

Bobby Bonds M.V.P. 1973 All-Star Game Puzzle

DESIGNS OF THE ALL-STAR CARDS RUN THE GAMUT, BUT NEARLY ALL OF THEM ARE AMONG THE MOST COLORFUL CARDS IN THAT YEAR'S SET AND MOST STAR-SPANGLED.

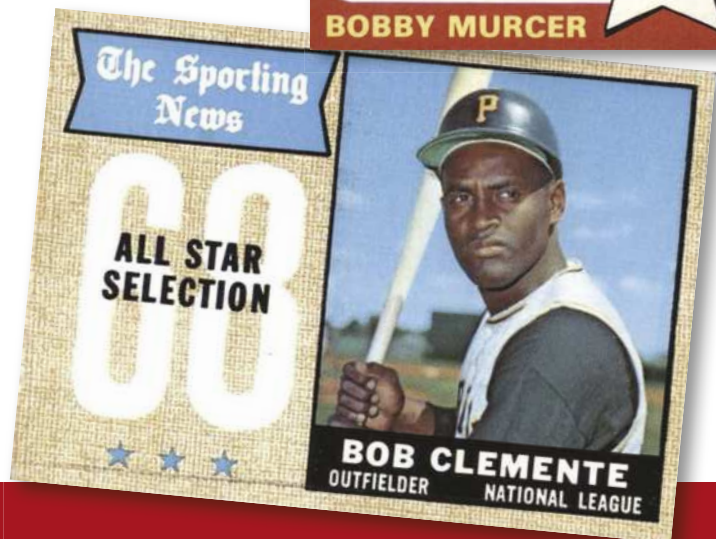

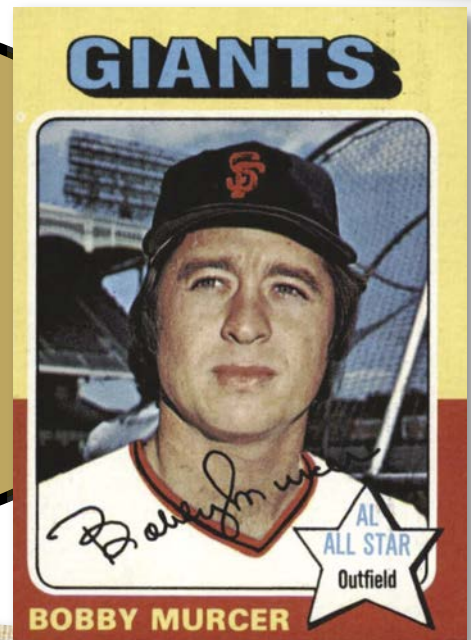

Aaron's Highlights card yellow-and-red though, giving the orange and brown borders of the Highlights cards priority. The most bizarre All-Star card of that set, however, is Bobby Murcer at No. 350. Murcer started in center field in the '74 game as a player for the New York Yankees. He was then traded in the off-season to the National League's San Francisco Giants. Topps kept Murcer's AL All-Star recognition on his card, but painted him into a Giants cap, making it appear that he played for the American League as the member of a National League team. Strange.

To conclude Topps' All-Star treatment through the years, turn the card over to the back. Backs range from blurbs with team-by-team stats (1958), large cartoons (1959-60, 1970), lengthy write-ups (1961, 1962) or puzzle pieces (1968-69, 1974).

Whether the All-Star Game will last in future years will decide whether there continues to be All-Star trading cards, a fundamental "subset" and tradition of collecting for decades.

Bobby Murcer had been an all-star with the Yankees in 1974. But after a trade to San Francisco, Murcer's card was "updated" to show his new team (complete with classic airbrushing) thus creating an American League All-Star card of a National League Player.

BUD GRANT

MAY 20, 1927 – MARCH 11, 2023

Hall of Fame coach Bud Grant never won a Super Bowl, but he sure knew how to get his teams to the Big Game. Grant led the Minnesota Vikings to four Super Bowl appearances from 1970-1977 – a sustained era of winning.

Grant coached the Vikings from 1967-83, then again in 1985. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1994.

WILLIS REED

JUNE 25, 1942 – MARCH 21, 2023

At 6-foot-10, Willis Reed may have been slightly undersized as a center, but the Hall of Famer was always in the middle of action in the paint, helping lead the New York Knicks to their first NBA Championship in 1970 and adding a second in 1973.

But he's most famous for emerging from the locker room at Madison Square Garden just before tipoff of the 1970 Finals Game 7. It was assumed Reed would miss the finale with injury, but when the doors swung open and he walked out, the roar was defining. Reed played, the Knicks won, and the event remains one of the biggest moments in New York sports history.

TIM McCARVER

OCT. 16, 1941 – FEB. 16, 2023

Tim McCarver, an all-star catcher, two-time World Series champion and a Hall of Fame broadcaster, passed away in February at the age of 81.

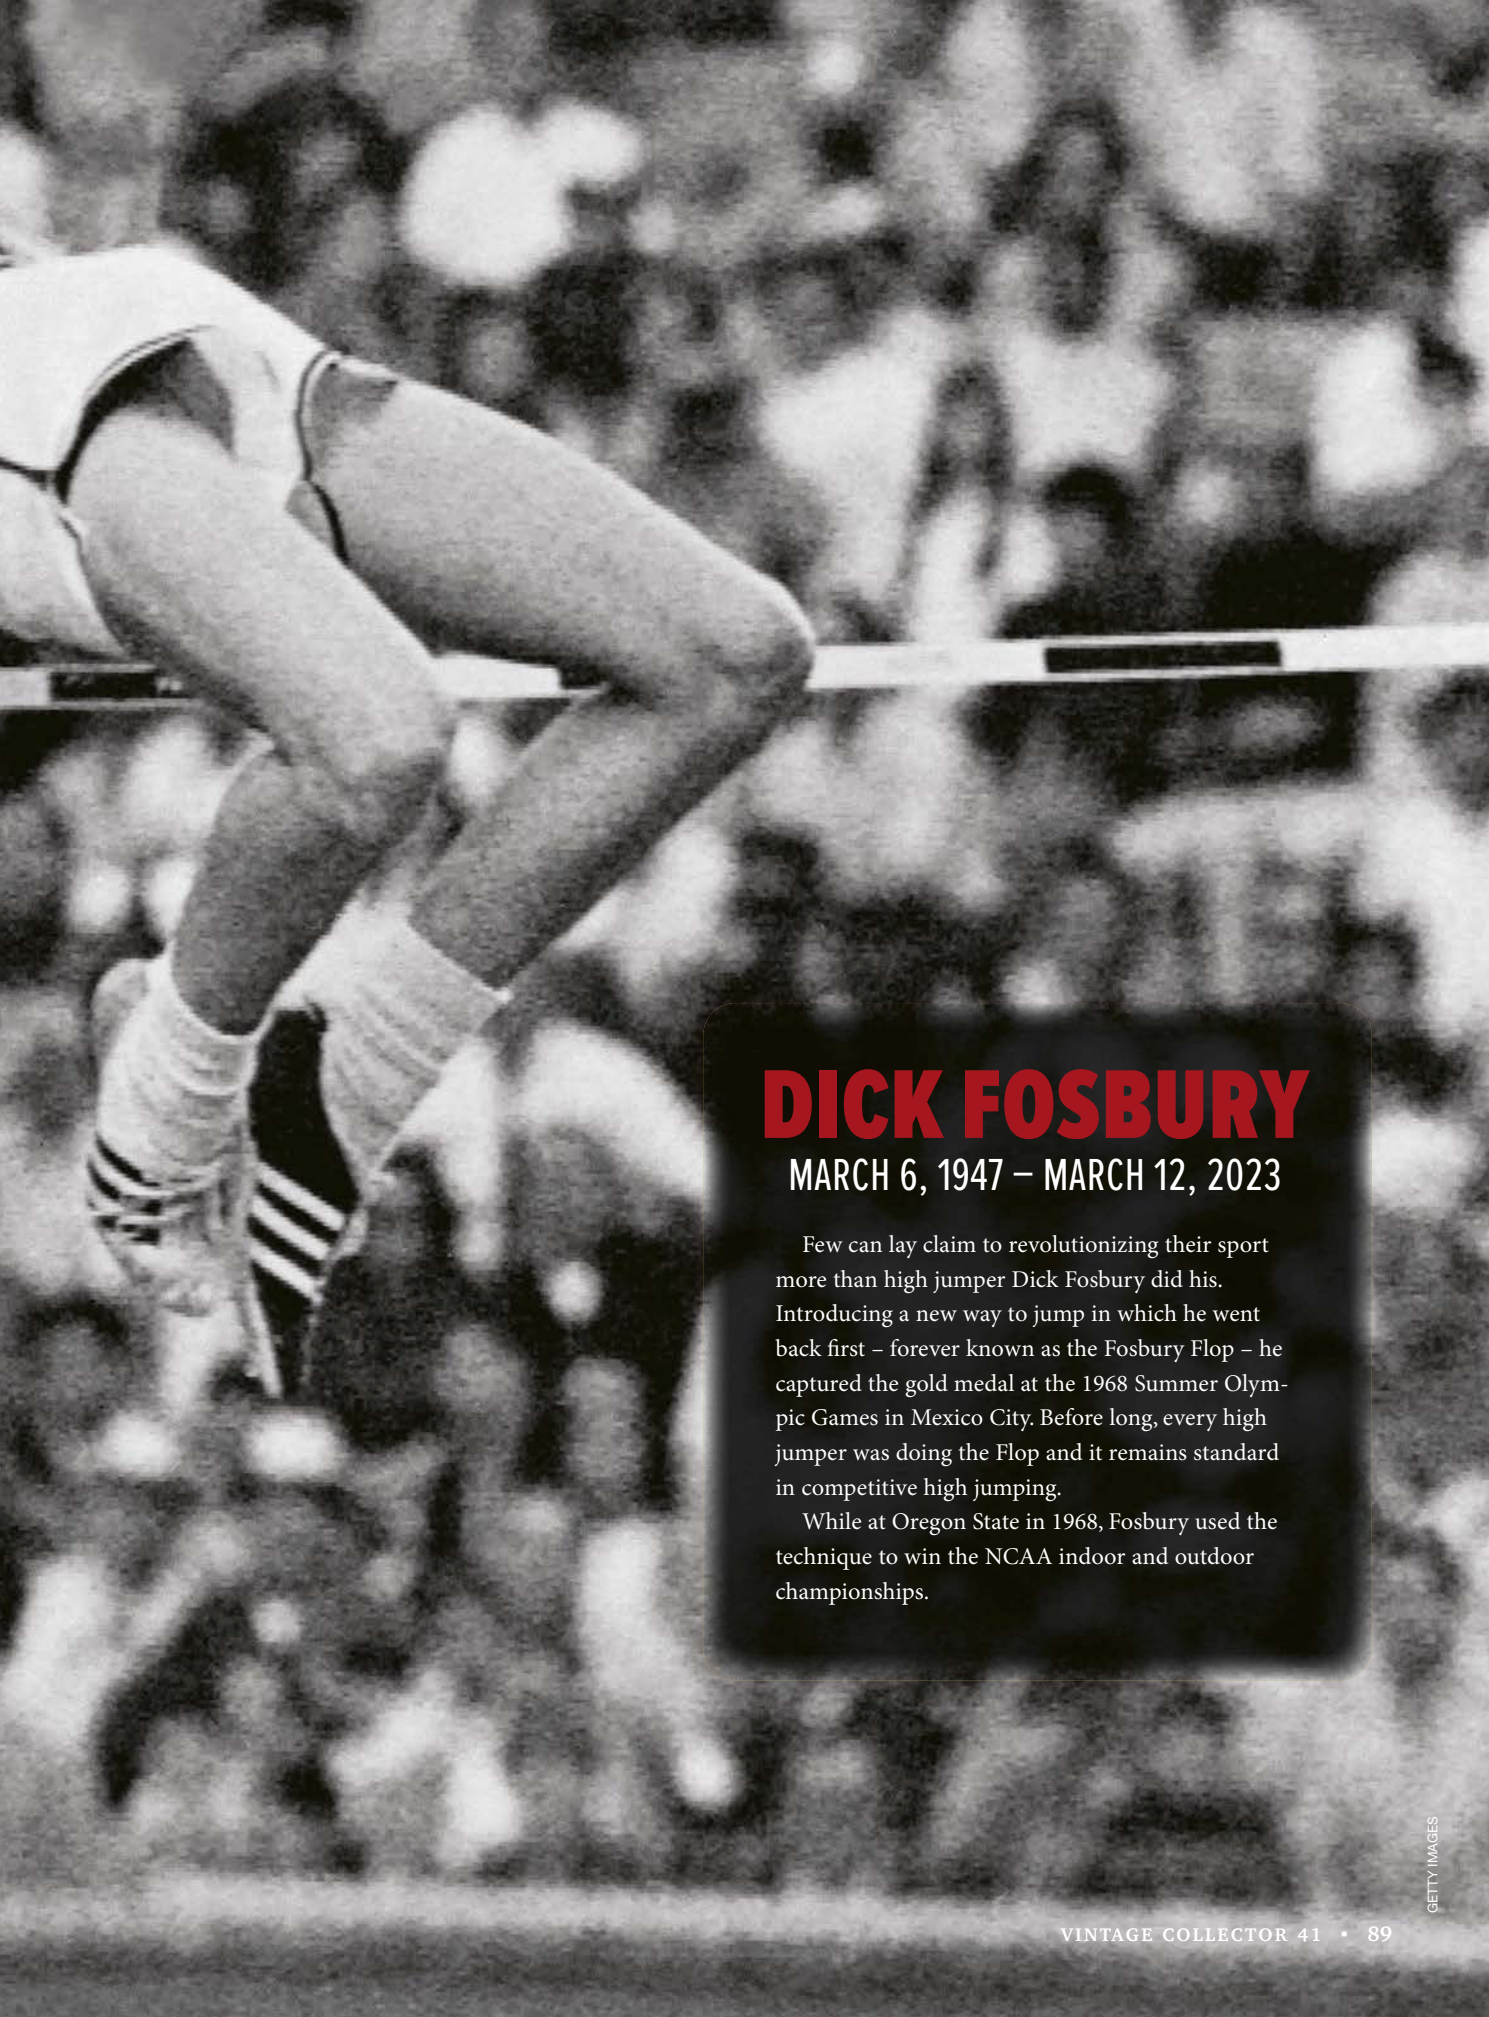

McCarver played major league games in four different decades – one of the few players to ever do that. He won World Series titles with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1964 and again in 1967. He was Bob Gibson's primary catcher during his Cardinals stint. He retired as a player in 1980, then went onto to call 24 World Series on television.

He was awarded the Ford C. Frick Award for broadcasting by the National Baseball Hall of Fame in 2012.

Dick Fosbury uses the Fosbury Flop to capture the gold medal at the 1968 Summer Olympic Games in Mexico City.

DICK FOSBURY

MARCH 6, 1947 – MARCH 12, 2023

Few can lay claim to revolutionizing their sport more than high jumper Dick Fosbury did his. Introducing a new way to jump in which he went back first – forever known as the Fosbury Flop – he captured the gold medal at the 1968 Summer Olympic Games in Mexico City. Before long, every high jumper was doing the Flop and it remains standard in competitive high jumping.

While at Oregon State in 1968, Fosbury used the technique to win the NCAA indoor and outdoor championships.
